FARMER'S WIFE, IN TRIAL, POINTS TO ROBERTSON

Mrs. A. R. Hynson Says He

IDENTIFIES HIM AFTER FIRST ATTEMPT FAILS

Hearing Is Halted for an Hour
After Attorneys Clash
as to Evidence.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Frederick, Md., Oct. 24.—Experts' testimony today failed to dim the fine-cut colors of the black shirt with white buttons, which Edward L. Miller, murderer is said to have worn, as attorneys for the State and counsel for the defense wrangled through the third day of the trial of Samuel T. Robertson.

"He is the man," Mrs. A. R. Hynson said, indicating Robertson, "who came to my farm during the month of June last year and he was wearing a black shirt with white buttons."

Mrs. Hynson was called to the stand as a prosecution witness just before the noon recess. She started the courtroom and took the State prosecutors by surprise when she declared she was unable to point out or identify Robertson in the courtroom. She was asked to withdraw from the stand. After the luncheon period Mrs. Hynson was again produced as a witness, and she declared Robertson visited her farm with reference to his purchase in June last year. He was wearing a black shirt with white buttons, she told the jury.

On cross-examination she explained her failure to identify Robertson during her first appearance was because she had reading glasses on.

Identification Is Slow.

The trial dragged slowly through the afternoon session with Louis L. Marr, a State witness, who qualified as an expert on photography and documents, on the stand. He testified at length to dozens of photographs in evidence. They were reproductions of the type-written note found pinned to Miller's clothing, the specimens of typewriting Mills made following his arrest at the request of police and several business letters, taken in Miller's home shortly after his arrest.

The process of the identification was slow. Marr was on the stand almost the entire afternoon session.

The cross-examination of this witness produced several sharp clashes between the opposing attorneys and at one point stopped the trial entirely while Judges Hammond Urner and John S. Newman, who are presiding in the case, looked up the law to determine whether a State witness, chief of defense counsel, had a right to ask Marr what books he had read in the State penitentiary, a compensation he expected from the Montgomery County authorities for his services in the case.

When that question was asked the prosecution objected to it and stopped the trial for near an hour while law books were consulted by the jurists. Finally Marr was permitted to answer a similar query and said he expected to receive between $700 and $800.

Ballistic Expert Testifies.

Maj. Calvin Goddard, New York ballistic expert, was the first witness called today. His direct testimony dealt with the identification of all the shells, leaden pellets and the two 32 caliber automatic pistols which formally were introduced in the evidence today.

During the short cross-examination of this State witness by Prescott, however, he admitted he had made a mistake in his direct testimony and that the bullets and other articles had not been in his personal custody during the entire time since they were turned over to him last April.

Two Baltimore detectives and two Rockville policemen testified that Robertson was not "cursed, abused and intimidated" during his incarceration in the Baltimore detective headquarters for questioning following his arrest on the murder charge last March.

The Baltimoreans were Capt. Charles H. Burns and Detective Lieut. James A. Manning. Burns denied during the hearing that when Robertson became surly he (Burns) told him if he didn't act like a gentleman he would "spin him on his head like a top."

Bank Cashier on Stand.

In the introduction of certain of Robertson's letters during his business activities as a Bethesda contractor, by the peculiarities of which the State hopes to fasten the Mills murder note on him, Samuel W. Bogley, Bethesda bank cashier, was called to the stand during the morning session.

Prescott asked the court's permission to use Bogley as a character witness for Robertson because "he is a busy man and wants to get back to his bank." The State agreed and the court allowed Bogley to testify as a defense witness in response to Prescott's request.

Robertson was a man of very excellent reputation, Bogley said. The witness left the stand at the conclusion of his testimony and took a seat beside Robertson, however, and stayed there several hours.

The slow progress made at the trial today became so noticeable during the afternoon that Judge Hammond Urner announced that night sessions would be necessary tomorrow night and the remainder of the week if the case were not finished this week.

He said sessions would be held Thursday and Friday nights. The State plans to continue with expert witnesses tomorrow.

KIN IN CRASH ON WAY TO DYING CAR VICTIM

Brothers Reach Miss King's Bedside Just Before
Her Death.

TAXI DRIVER IS INJURED

Death having claimed one of the two young women who Tuesday were dragged 150 feet by a speeding automobile of the Fire Department at Fourteenth and C streets northwest, the task of fixing responsibility for the accident today will be transferred to a coroner's jury that will convene at the District Morgue at 11 o'clock this morning.

Miss Cecelia D. King, 23 years old, of 3038 Otis street northwest, died at Emergency Hospital, without regaining consciousness, shortly after noon yesterday. Her companion, who was injured at the same time, Mrs. Margaret A. Connick, 24 years old, of 1357 Good Hope road southeast, is still unconscious at the hospital, and although her condition is extremely critical a slight hope is held out for her recovery.

Immediately following the announcement of Miss King's death, William Jaeger, driver of the battalion chief's automobile that struck the two girls, surrendered at the First Precinct. Upon the order of Acting Coroner Joseph Rogers, Jaeger was released in the custody of Acting Fire Chief P. W. Nicholson, who assumed responsibility for Jaeger's appearance at the inquest.

The body of Miss King was turned over to Frank Rogers' Sons' Co., funeral directors, 1113 Seventh street northwest, and funeral services will be conducted Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from the St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

William J. and E. A. King, brothers of the dead girl, narrowly escaped injury yesterday as they were speeding in the former's automobile to their sister's deathbed, which they finally reached as the girl drew her last breath.

Coming from their home, at 3038 Otis street northeast, the young men collided at Seventh street and Rhode island avenue northwest with a taxi cab operated by George R. Litz, of 211 Fifteenth street northeast. Litz received minor cuts and bruises, and both automobiles were slightly damaged. The two brothers hailed a taxicab and completed their journey to Emergency.

William King is a private in the police department attached to the Traffic Bureau.

An official report of the accident of Tuesday was made to the District Commissioners yesterday by Acting Chief Nicholson, in the absence of Chief George S. Watson, who is confined to his home by illness. The report has not been made public, however, and it is not believed that the Commissioners will take any action in the matter until after the inquest today.

BISHOPS URGE NEW IMMIGRATION LAW

Discrimination Against Oriental Races Is Declared
Good-Will Barrier.

DR. ROOTS IS SPONSOR

A resolution calling upon the United States to modify its immigration laws and protesting against discriminations against Oriental nations was adopted by the House of Bishops yesterday at the last full business day of the general convention of the Episcopal Church. The convention will conclude its sessions today with a service at the Church of the Epiphany at 11 a. m., where the bishops will be read.

The immigration resolution was introduced by the Right Rev. Logan H. Rogers, bishop of Hankow, China. It specified that the immigration law should apply equally to all aliens in the United States now or who come here later. The bishop later amended his resolution to read, "At present there are discriminations in our immigration laws against Oriental nations which are a barrier to good will and a hindrance to Christian mission work."

"Japan," Bishop Root said, "is now maintaining an attitude of proud, patient waiting for the United States to change its mind on the immigration question. When a central government is established in China that country will take the same attitude as Japan."

The modification he proposes, the bishop said, would affect only 146 immigrants from Japan and 100 from China each year.

The new marriage ceremony in the Episcopal Church. It became known when Bishop Charles L. Slattery, of Massachusetts, issued a summary of changes in the prayer book, which will not require the woman to promise to "obey" her husband. Neither will it have the bridegroom make the vow "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." Both of these phrases have been omitted from the new ceremony.

The Rev. Dr. George Fiske Dudley, a member of the Washington delegation in the House of Deputies and secretary to the Commission on Home and Family Life, yesterday presented a resolution in the House of Deputies to urge upon Federal and State authorities stricter and more uniform marriage laws designed to prevent marriage of defectives and to place a greater curb on hasty marriages. The resolution was referred to the commission studying the question of marriage and divorce, headed by the Right Rev. Herman Page, Bishop of Michigan.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Jenkins, rector of St. Barnabas Chapel, McMinville, Oregon, was elected missionary bishop of Nevada yesterday by the House of Bishops meeting in closed session in the Church of the Epiphany. The Rev. Dr. Jenkins is said to have been a leading candidate for this post at the first elec-

CAR FARE RAISE LAID ASIDE FOR MERGER ACTION

Board Dismisses Plea and Companies Agree Not to Sue.

PROPOSAL ACCEPTED
AT LONG CONFERENCE

Details of Plan Are Explained
in Statements; Citizens Claim Victory.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday dismissed the petition of the Capital Traction street car company for higher car fares, and there will be no further effort to increase fares until after the adjournment of the next session of Congress on March 4. The commission's dismissal order was based on the fact that the street car merger plan is pending before Congress.

Both the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. agreed to accept the dismissal order and to make no effort to upset it in the courts or through new proceedings before the commission pending action on the merger by Congress.

The agreement was reached late in the afternoon at a conference between the commission and William W. Brite, corporation counsel, and officers of both street car companies, including John H. Hanna, president; George E. Hamilton, chairman of the board, and G. Thomas Dunlop, general counsel, of the Capital Traction Co., and William F. Ham, president, and S. L. Bowen, general counsel, for the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

When the agreement was made, the companies faced a decision by the commission to dismiss the Capital Traction petition on the ground that the Washington Railway & Electric Co. was not entitled to higher fares because it had not asked for them, and the Capital Traction Co. had declared it would not accept them unless they were given to its rival.

Fought For by Laue.

That action had been fought for by Col. William B. Laue for some time and had finally been pushed to a victory when Harrison Brand Jr., vice chairman of the commission, agreed to support it. It was devised by Brite, who told the commission that he was perfectly willing to go into the courts and defend it if the Capital Traction Co. sought to upset it there.

The first intimation that another course of action would be taken came yesterday, when Hanna called Chairman John W. Childress from the gas valuation hearing and was escorted with him for some time in a private conference which neither he nor Childress would discuss.

That conference reported that Hanna's company intended to withdraw its petition rather than to face an adverse decision by the commission, based on the legal grounds urged by Brite and Laue.

The action agreed on at the conference later in the day has a different aspect. The company, through the agreement with the commission, got the advantage of using the record of the hearings already completed as a basis for its claim when it makes new application for higher fares after March 4. Should Congress fail to approve the

Yankee Doodle Fliers Off On Nonstop Dash to Coast

Capt. Collyer and Harry
Tucker Seek Record
From East to West.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Oct. 24 (A.P.). The cigar-shaped Lockheed Vega monoplane Yankee Doodle snuck like a white projectile from the runway this afternoon and headed for Mines Field, Los Angeles, in an attempt to beat a record that has stood for more than five years.

Harry Tucker, owner of the plane, was in the rear seat, dressed in an ordinary business suit, while the controls were in the hands of Capt. C. B. D. Collyer, sky writer and joint holder of the round-the-world speed record.

Last August, Tucker, piloted by Art Goebel, crossed the country in one hop from Los Angeles in 18 hours and 58 minutes, beating the time of the only transcontinental nonstop flight there has ever been by almost eight hours.

That early flight was made from east to west by Lieut. John Macready and Oakley Kelly in 1923, their time being 26 hours and 50 minutes. In the flight started today Collyer and Tucker will attempt to beat Macready and Kelly over their own course.

The route of the Yankee Doodle on its latest flight lies over McKeesport, Pa.; Columbus, Indiana; Terre Haute, Wichita, Albuquerque and the San Bernardino Pass. The weather was reported to be good all the way, with the exception of fairly strong head winds over the Appalachians.

The Yankee Doodle once before has reced from the East Coast toward the West, but without success. In the trans-

"No, I'll never marry again. Three husbands are enough for any one woman."

But today she dashed right back into matrimony. Her fourth husband is Charles Minot Amory, member of an old Boston family and equally as high as the former Mrs. Baker in the social scale.

PANZRAM REFUSES TO ADMIT MURDERS

LIMP SEEMS ONE CLEW

Detectives from Massachusetts arrived in Washington last night to confirm the opinion of their superiors that Carl Panzram, held in the District Jail on a charge of housebreaking, is the murderer of 12-year-old Henry McMahon, of Salem.

They found Panzram recalcitrant under their questioning, refusing to affirm or deny the confession, which, Washington policemen say, he made to killing three boys, but perfectly willing to accompany his interrogators back to Massachusetts.

Simultaneously, word was received from Philadelphia that the body of a 14-year-old boy, Alexander Kysrock, had been exhumed and identified following an investigation launched to prove the truth or falsity of the Philadelphia portion of Panzram's alleged confession.

Panzram, police say, has confessed to killing the three boys in letters written to authorities near the places where he said he committed the crimes. His story, at first scouted by police, assumed importance when details of his story corresponded to the killing which occurred six years ago in a field near Salem, Mass.

The prisoner, last night was sullen under the questions fired at him by the group, including Lieut. Edward

EDUCATORS ASSAIL RELIGIOUS ISSUES

Princeton and Williams Heads
Speak at Hoover-
Curtis Rally.

4,000 HEAR ADDRESSES

The injection of religious prejudices in the present presidential campaign and Gov. Alfred E. Smith's opposition to the eighteenth amendment were sharply criticized last night by the presidents of Princeton University and Williams College in addresses at a Hoover-Curtis Republican rally in the Washington Auditorium.

More than 4,000 persons heard Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, charge Gov. Smith of New York, the Democratic nominee, with being absurd in asking the American people to believe that he, as President, would see that the prohibition amendment was enforced, while, privately using all his opportunities to appeal to the people of the States and to their legislatures to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

"It is a matter of great regret and indignation as well that in this campaign there should be any evidence of religious intolerance and bigotry," John Orier Hibben, president of Princeton University, declared in his address.

The decision to vote for the next President should be based solely upon reason, and reason can function only when it can operate freely, completely relieved of all the perturbations of prejudice, President Hibben said, in declaring that no voter, should be a Catholic, cast his ballot for Gov. Smith simply because the Democratic nominee is of the same faith.

The Princeton president also declared that any one is prejudiced who votes for a candidate in order to register one's protest against the eighteenth amendment.

"Whatever this campaign is," Hibben said, "it can not be considered a referendum on the eighteenth amendment."

Were Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee, elected President, the question of prohibition would be approached by one whose life demonstrates his sympathetic interest in the welfare of the people and one who believes that a noble experiment in the interests of the American home is being tried, Garfield said.

Herbert Hoover believes that "the eighteenth amendment should not be abandoned until the American people are satisfied that another way is the better way—better for homes, for mothers, for children, and not better for the manufacturer and importer of distilled spirits and wines," Garfield said.

In speaking of the question of which party has offered the best solution for the farmer, Garfield said to his mind there is little difference between the promises given by the Republican and Democratic parties.

With this in mind, it is up to the farmer to vote for the man he deems best qualified to deal with questions most touching to their interests, Garfield said.

The speaker pointed out that Hoover was born in the Middle West, and has had far more opportunity to learn the real needs of the farmer of this section than the Democratic candidate, whose origin is "best typified by song, 'The Sidewalks of New York.'"

The rally was the most largely attended of any of the many political gatherings held so far in Washington

Wild Throngs, Estimated at 1,000,000, Roar Welcome to Democratic Leader.

By EDWIN W. GARLEMAN
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Boston, Mass., Oct. 24.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic nominee for President, opened his big Atlantic seaboard offensive today to the encouragement o. crowds that have no parallel in the political history of Massachusetts.

It was one continuous ovation for Gov. Smith from the time his special train crossed the border line between New York to Massachusetts this morning until his triumphant entry into Boston late this afternoon. The enthusiasm of the crowds knew no bounds.

Inspired by his tremendous reception in this normally Republican Commonwealth, Gov. Smith here tonight shot a sizzling reply to the speech of Mr. Hoover in New York City last Monday night.

Lists Republican Leaders.

He accepted the issue of "State socialism" as raised by Mr. Hoover in that speech, and welcomed into the select company of "State socialists" according to the Hoover standard, such eminent Republicans as the late President Theodore Roosevelt, Vice President Charles M. Dawes, Charles Evans Hughes, one-time Republican nominee for President and holder of high offices under Republican administrations; Senator Charles Curtis, Mr. Hoover's running mate; former Gov. Nathan L. Miller of New York, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, and the Republican members of Congress who voted for the Muscle Shoals and McNary-Haugen farm relief bills, vetoed by President Coolidge.

In the same category he placed Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Co., and author of the Dawes reparation plan, and the vast multitude of farmers in the corn and wheat belt of the country who have been pleading for relief from their distress along lines advocated by himself in his Omaha speech.

Audience Fills Three Halls.

Gov. Smith's audience filled three halls to capacity—the Arena in which he spoke, the Mechanics Hall, and the Symphony Hall, the three having a combined seating capacity of more than 30,000. Stoodees, who packed the aisles almost to suffocation, swelled the total to approximately 50,000, while outside the Arena, a raging mob extending for blocks defied any estimates of its size.

Before reaching the Arena the governor made brief visits to the other two halls, his appearance almost evoking a riot in each instance. In response to clamors, he made a brief speech of acknowledgment at each place and was all but mobbed by his admirers as he attempted to proceed to where he was scheduled to make his set speech.

His reception at Boston late this afternoon beggars description. No human being could see or hear all that took place during the tumultuous hour and a half that he was at the mercy of a crowd that clogged the streets through which he attempted to pass on his way from the railroad station to the hotel.

Demonstration Was Riotous.

No such riotous demonstration has taken place since Gov. Smith started cut on his coat of the West five weeks ago. Without any exaggeration, it was bedlam turned loose, but it was a bedlam of sheer delight, rather than of disorder. His home city of New York never has given him a greater tribute of affection and approval.

South Station, where the governor and his party alighted from the train, housed a seething mass of humanity that had stood for hours to await his coming. Women fainted during the stampede as the governor approached the station concourse, and police were powerless to control the rush in his direction. With difficulty he and his police escort squirmed through the mob, eventually reaching the automobile that was to convey him to the parade.

Conditions immediately outside the station were even worse. The street seemed to be blocked for squares with men, women and children, all seeking to get as near as possible to the center of the street.

Procession Moves Slowly.
At no time nor place during the tedious procession was there ever any diminution in the size of the crowd that jammed every conceivable inch of standing room from building walls to nearly half way into the street on either side.

Down through the financial district, through a mass of ticker tape and paper, where the reception was just as boisterous as anywhere else, past the old South Church and the old State House, over the scene of the first Boston massacre, past historic Faneuil Hall and Kings Chapel and into Boston Common the procession moved tortuously through the crowd, with Gov. Smith's car in the van, along the Common was reached one half of the governor's party had become separated from the parade by the onrush of spectators who broke through the police lines and made motor traffic impossible.

The climax of the demonstration came at Boston Common, where estimates of the crowd massed in one solid phalanx in front of the stand reserved for the governor varied from 100,000 to 150,000.

Greets Crowd at Common.

In only one particular did the estimates agree, and that was that it was the largest crowd ever assembled on Boston Common. Critics of the governor were so insistent that the governor finally expressed his appreciation for the welcome in a microphone from a man who amplified his voice to the farthest recesses of the crowd. The governor, who had been in the van, the Smith enthusiasts yelling and cheering and throwing their hats into the air or waving flags and banners, carrying the picture of the nominee.

A way was cleared at the Common for the procession, which moved down the street through another milling crowd of people to the governor's hotel with enthusiasm rampant every foot of the way. At the hotel entrance the crowd was massed on all sides, bringing traffic to a standstill. Every outburst of the crowd was like the roar of a multitude had been turned loose, and there was a fresh outburst every few seconds.

Million Believed in Throng.

Some idea of the size and temper of the crowd may be had from the fact that it took Gov. Smith 1 hour and 25 minutes to go approximately two miles. It is estimated here that more than 1,000,000 people, from him from the time he left the station until he reached his hotel. Boston, a normally Democratic city, outdid itself today for Gov. Smith, who received the homage reserved for a popular idol.

The Boston reception was a duplicate in a proportionately larger degree of the demonstration in Springfield. Smith in the mill cities and towns of Massachusetts through which he passed today on his way to the Hub City. The normally Republican cities of Springfield and Worcester turned out upward of 50,000 people each to cheer him during the ten minutes he was in their midst.

The long public squares facing the railroad station in each city literally were crammed with people from one end to another and their enthusiasm was tremendous. Newspaper men who accompanied Mr. Hoover last week said the crowds at each place were three times the size of the throngs that turned out to welcome him.

Walsh Speaks at Springfield.

At Worcester, Gov. Smith alighted from the train and walked to a huge platform in the center of the square where he waved the "brown derby" and bowed in appreciation of the applause. Senator David I. Walsh, candidate for reelection, and Gen. Charles H. Cole, Democratic nominee for governor, roused the crowd to a high pitch of enthusiasm with speeches urging the election of Gov. Smith. Mrs. Smith and John A. Warner, the elder Smith daughter, were overwhelmed with huge bouquets of flowers, as they were at Springfield.

It was the same story at Pittsfield, Dalton, Westwood, Framingham, Dedham, Newtonville, and other mill cities and towns through which the governor passed during the day. Many of them were not on the schedule for stops, but the train halted when the size of the throngs permitted no other course. Gov. Smith was given every reason to "have faith in Massachusetts" by the crowds that greeted him at his unofficial reception committee today.

At Springfield, a delegation of State

Evangelist-Sleuth, However, Denies He Is Killer of Indiana Woman.

THREE NOW UNDER ARREST

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Protesting his innocence, Harvey K. Smith, private detective, wandering evangelist and jack-of-all-trades, wanted in connection with the murder of Mrs. Genevieve Stultz, was returned here from Atlanta, Ga., last night by John D. Kuespert, assistant chief of police, and Detective William Dietrich. Smith was held on a charge of first-degree murder brought against him a week ago, shortly after the body of Mrs. Stultz was found in a shallow grave near Elkhart. Mrs. Stultz disappeared last March.

Charles L. Reyher, South Bend real estate broker, and his wife, are held without bond in the Elkhart County Jail. They, too, are charged with first-degree murder.

Police said Reyher admitted a love affair with Mrs. Stultz. Mrs. Reyher, in a statement to police, said she paid Smith $50 to get Mrs. Stultz out of town. Smith, police said, admitted receiving $50 for shadowing Reyher and Mrs. Stultz.

Smith, who is said to have specialized in investigating domestic difficulties, confessed "plenty about the murder," according to Kuespert. He added that Smith denied any part in the actual slaying of Mrs. Stultz.

"Will there be any further arrests in this case?" Kuespert was asked.

"There absolutely will not be," Kuespert replied emphatically. "We have enough now to go ahead and convict the slayer of Mrs. Stultz."

Leaders, including Senator Walsh, Gen. Cole, John P. Malley, nominee for lieutenant-governor, Edward P. Barry, candidate for attorney-general, Dr. Joseph S. Stinson, nominee for secretary of state, and Frank J. Donohue, chairman of the Democratic State committee, boarded the Smith special and accompanied the governor and his party to Boston. Previously they had addressed the monster crowd at Springfield.

Mrs. Sayre Stills Crowd.

The arena was filled to overflowing long before the time Gov. Smith was to speak. At 6 o'clock the doors were closed by the police who stationed themselves in front of the hotel and the auditorium and kept the crowd back. For three more hours, a veritable stampede raged on side of the hall, which Smith arrived shortly before 9 o'clock. He penetrated a solid wall of humanity and came into the hall with the aid of a police escort.

The crowd inside was in a mood to cheer lustily at every opportunity. All night long the sound of paper being tossed from the galleries every time the spirit of democracy was aroused, and the hall resounded with tumultuous cheering.

Answers Socialism Charge.

One by one Gov. Smith tonight took up the specific proposals which Mr. Hoover said would cause the country to turn to State socialism—water power, farm relief and prohibition—and by the record endeavored to show that Mr. Hoover's indictment embraced a veritable galaxy of Republican leaders and a vast number of lesser party adherents whose patriotism and party loyalty were not even open to question.

It afforded him another opportunity also to criticize Mr. Hoover for couching his campaign utterances in language that he said was hard to fathom and to refer again to his failure to refer to scandals of preceding Republican administrations, notably of his campaign manager, Dr. Hubert Work, in signing the renewal of the Elkhart River oil lease when Secretary of Interior in the Coolidge cabinet.

Riddles Prosperity Claim.

Also he riddled claims of Republican prosperity as applied to the farmers of the West and the textile workers of New England.

It was the opening for which Gov. Smith has been longing ever since he started his active campaign five weeks ago. For five weeks he has been telling the people of the West and Northwest, of the South and border States, of the middle central States and to the voters of the country generally over the radio, where he stood on the dominant issues of the campaign, handicapped to some extent by the fact that his opponent talked in a language that he could not translate for argumentative purposes.

The text of Gov. Smith's radio address will be found on page 4.

Kelly of the homicide squad of the local police force, Michael Shea, assistant district attorney, Police Capt. Gideon Pelletier, of Salem, and Lieut. William F. Murray of the Massachusetts State Police.

The latter two arrived here about 9 o'clock last night and in company with Kelly and Shea went direct to the jail. Panzram would not say whether the contents of his earlier confession in the Salem killing is true or not. Neither would he deny its veracity. In fact, he refused to answer any questions.

The Massachusetts officers came without any form of requisition papers or Panzram, but were provided with the description of the slayer of the McManis boy as furnished to them by a woman and her son who saw the slain boy walking near the scene of his death with a stranger on the day of the murder.

This man, they said, walked with a limp. A marked impediment in the gait of Panzram was noticed when he was ordered to walk across the office at the jail.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made by Philadelphia police to send detectives here to investigate the prisoner's alleged connection with the murder there.

Found with the body of the Philadelphia boy last August were the parts of a letter written to the Philadelphia authorities Panzram is said to have stated that he had stolen a radio set from a yacht in the Delaware River prior to the murder. A yacht owner, whose craft was in the river on the day of the murder, later identified the parts of the set as his.

In his letter to the chief of police of New London, Conn., Panzram is alleged to have stated: "I might as well be executed for one murder as for another. I have committed murders for which innocent men are now in prison."

Panzram will be questioned again today, the detectives said last night, as they returned him to his cell.

Elections to Council.

Elections to the national council from provinces were announced in the House of Representatives today. The Right Rev. James D. Perry, Bishop of Rhode Island; Second Province, William J. Tully, of Long Island; Third Province, the Right Rev. Thomas J. Garland, Bishop of Pennsylvania; Fourth Province, the Right Rev. T. Reese, Bishop of Ohio; Fifth Province, the Right Rev. J. M. Francis, Bishop of Indianapolis; Sixth Province, the Rev. A. E. Knickerbocker, of Minneapolis; Seventh Province, Dr. W. P. Witsell, of Arkansas; and Eighth Province, the Right Rev. L. C. Sanford, Bishop of the House of Bishops ratified the plan approved Tuesday by the House of Deputies under which the Episcopal church will expend $225,000 annually for maintenance during the next three years and an additional $3,000,000 during that period for special mission projects.

The House of Deputies refused to concur in a motion passed by the House of Bishops which would place the majority of bishops present at a given general convention to amend the constitution.

President Coolidge thanked Rev. George H. Powell, dean of the Church of the Holy Trinity, of the Pacific, San Francisco, said that too often lack of man of the convention, Hugh T. Nelson, on the part of the bishops. He added: "I do not see why we should be called upon to enlarge the army of Episcopal golfers."

President Coolidge was thanked for his address at the opening service of the General Convention of the Episcopal church in Washington Cathedral Amphitheater on October 10, and for his militant Christianity in a resolution passed unanimously by the House of Bishops yesterday afternoon.

The resolution also included an expression of appreciation to Bishop Freeman of Washington, who presided as host of the general convention. Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, general chairman of the convention, Hugh T. Nelson, its general secretary, and others of Washington diocese, were specially named in the resolution of thanks.

A new service for the "Visitation of the Sick" has been added, and at its close provision is made for anointing of the hands of the sick, together with prayer for the sick, a concession to the advocates of spiritual healing.

Bishop Slattery, in his statement, declared that the burial office has been enriched by new selections from the Scriptures and new prayers which give it a deeper note, and a "New Testament awe" before the great mystery of death.

Special services for those at sea and for prisoners have also been included in the new book. The Psalter has been entirely revised by a committee of competent scholars.

Articles of religion remain within the covers of the Prayer Book. "In general," concluded Bishop Slattery, in his summary, "larger responsibility is placed upon the officiating minister, and many opportunities for shortening the services are given."

PLANT FOR BIG RUBBER COMBINE S FAILURE

British and Dutch Growers Meet, but Can Not Agree on Apportionment.

IS AIMED AT AMERICANS

(United Press.)

Negotiations between British and Dutch interests for a rubber production restriction combine to dictate world rubber prices have collapsed following a series of unsuccessful conferences in London and Amsterdam. The United Press learned in an authoritative quarter last night.

The attempted combine was planned to replace the British Stevenson rubber restriction act, which will be automatically repealed November 1, after an unsuccessful six-year test.

The failure of the British-Dutch negotiations will mean the saving of millions of dollars to American motorists and reliable quarters here anticipate further efforts to conclude the combine. United States rubber companies are assured of no further price pyramiding pressure for many months.

It was learned authoritatively that Great Britain has sought to effect the agreement for production restriction with Dutch interests for several months. Great Britain and Holland control together approximately 60 per cent of the world's rubber supply. Britain's failure to make a success of the Stevenson restriction act has been attributed to the large Dutch production outside of British controlled areas.

Such a combine—aimed at the United States as consumer of about 80 per cent of the world's rubber—would effectively give British-Dutch interests undisputed control of world prices for many years, until the large rubber projects undertaken in the last two years by Henry Ford in Brazil and the Firestone Rubber Co. in Liberia could begin producing.

The failure of the conferences, it was learned, was over inability to agree on the apportionment of production restriction. A committee of Dutch planters from the East Indies went to Holland and to England to discuss the combine, but a series of meetings resulted in no agreement.

Whiting's letter read, in part, as follows:

"I would like to give you in writing the estimate of Mr. Hoover which I expressed to you orally this afternoon. As his successor in office, I am able to say that he is an executive of rare quality. He possesses energy, imagination, and the ability to get things done. He is a man of high character and high integrity. He is a man of high caliber and high caliber."

HUGHES POINTS OUT PROSPERITY'S REIGN

Cites Billions People Have in Savings Banks; Hits Smith on Tariff.

LAUDS HOOVER AND PARTY

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Charles Evans Hughes, in his second speech in behalf of the candidacy of Herbert Hoover, declared here tonight that the political aims of the great majority of the American people could be summed up broadly in the words "prosperity and progress." He arrived in Chicago only a few hours before the time set for his address in a hall on the north side of the city.

"Progress demands stability, patience in dealing with problems on their merits, the search for the practical way, the talent to recognize it and leadership in pursuing it," he declared.

"If I were asked to name the man who in my judgment is the leading progressive of our day, I should name the Republican candidate for President, Herbert Hoover. To think progressive, that is, toward betterment, to plan to achieve something worth while by practical methods in the interest of the American people, is as natural to him as to breathe."

Mr. Hughes said much had been done in this campaign in an effort to belittle the "prosperity we enjoy," but he would not discuss it.

"With our roads filled with motor cars, with our savings bank deposits increased in the past seven years and a half from 15 to 26 billions of dollars, there is little need to argue the point," he said.

The Government can help in maintaining and extending prosperity by economy, by protection to American interests through adequate tariff, by the extension through internal improvements of the facilities of transportation and by giving the cooperation of Government to cooperative endeavors, Mr. Hughes declared. It was to these four subjects, economy, tariff, transportation and cooperation, that Mr. Hughes devoted much of his speech.

As to progress, Mr. Hughes said the Republican nominee's "whole bent is in devising improvements and in seeking a more abundant life for all."

Gov. Smith seems to forget that it is the Republican party that, against tremendous opposition, gave the Interstate Commerce Commission its rate-making power in the control of transportation; that gave us the Hepburn act and the Carmack amendment; the pure food and drugs act; the meat inspection act; the house of service act; the employees' liability act; the Federal budget reform and many other progressive measures.

Hughes quoted at length from Secretary Mellon's statement as to what has been accomplished by the administration in the matter of reduction of taxes and public debt.

"But instead of taking pride in such achievements, our opponents resort to a derogatory comment," the speaker said. Praising the work of Vice President Dawes when he was at the head of the Federal Budget Bureau, and that of Gen. Lord, who followed Mr. Dawes in that position, Mr. Hughes added: "Yet, Gov. Smith calls him 'Cotton' and 'Sellers Lord,' and accuses him of 'selling' 'eyes' to the public."

"I suppose this is what Gov. Smith calls the 'low down.' I think it is quite low down."

Mr. Hughes said he had been unable to find that Gov. Smith had a record of economy.

Gov. Smith says that "the Democratic theory is that government should be constructive and not destructive; it should be progressive and not reactionary."

"These are familiar words. They were the words of Bryan preaching the delusion of 16 to 1 in 1896 and proposing his fantastic remedies for trusts in 1908. They have been the words of Democratic leaders for many years in preaching 'tariff for revenue only' and the words of the Democratic platform of today in demanding duties on imports that will bring about the 'effective competition' of foreign goods."

"Hoover's Americanism is not a thing of slogans or catch words to win voters," concluded Hughes. "It is a profound conviction based on accurate knowledge of American institutions, a conviction based on accurate knowledge of what other political systems are and the injuries they inflict."

Flight of Zeppelin Delayed by Rain

Eckener to Make Trip Only When Ship Can Be Seen by the Populace.

Lekehurst, N. J., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The Middle West flight of the transatlantic airship Graf Zeppelin tonight was postponed until tomorrow night because of rain and poor visibility over the Allegheny coast region.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship, said a low pressure area moving across the Great Lakes toward the mountains while placing the ship in no danger would likely obscure the craft from the vision of observers below and hide the country from passengers. The flight to the Middle West would have no demonstrative value, Dr. Eckener said, unless the ship sailed in sight of the populace.

Hoover Bet of $525,000 Is 3 to 1 Against Smith

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—An enthusiast for Gov. Alfred E. Smith deposited $175,000 with Corbett, Inc., San Francisco commissionaires, today, to be used as a wager of odds 1 to 3 that Smith will be elected President, the firm announced.

DELEGATION PRAISES HOOVER RELIEF WORK

Visitors Declare He Saved
2,000,000 Lives in Ukraine Famine.

SUPPORT IS PLEDGED HIM

Herbert Hoover's thoughts have been taken back to the dark days of his relief work in Europe yesterday when a delegation called at his headquarters to thank him for his humanitarian labors and to pledge him support in his race for the Presidency. The delegation was composed of social workers and prominent Jews, some of them residents of the District.

It was definitely announced yesterday that Mr. Hoover would start for Palo Alto, Calif., to vote a week from today. His train will make a brief stop at Cumberland, Md., where the nominee will deliver a rear-platform speech, and another stop the following morning at Louisville, Ky. From there the train will go on to St. Louis, where Hoover will deliver his last big speech of the campaign.

James N. Rosenberg, vice chairman of the American Jewish joint distribution committee, acted as spokesman for the delegation. He told Mr. Hoover yesterday, Maurice Bisgier, of Washington, presented the delegation to Mr. Hoover.

"The famine work for the Ukraine, conducted under your leadership," Rosenberg told Hoover, "meant the feeding and saving of over 2,000,000 men, women and children who otherwise would have starved to death."

"They were not asked what church they went to. Tolerance is so often preached. Your organization practiced it. It is no wonder then that the symbol ARA has throughout Europe come to mean a blessing."

Replying to Rosenberg, the Republican nominee said:

"The great tasks of life saving in which it was my privilege to have a part with you are, thank God, things of the past, and today I am a more hopeful world. The disaster of the war is behind us. Today we have had one problem before us—bringing up those who lay in the great march of progress to the front ranks—for we are all marching."

"I should like only to add that this great relief work in which the lives of tens of millions were preserved was only possible because of the generosity of my countrymen and women, who always respond to the call of need without regard to nationality or religion."

Washingtonians in the delegation were Maj. John Lewis Smith, Maj. J. I. Peyer, and Dr. J. I. Peyer, Jr., Isaac Gans, E. I. Kaufmann, Morris Gervitz, Edward Rosenthal and Lewis Gervitz.

Others in the delegation were Lewis Strauss, Frederick Brown, A. N. Rugg, Dr. Harold Korn and William Plannan, all of New York; Elliott J. Kopp, Robert Fleming, of Boston; David Holzer and Meyer Nager, of Newark, N. J.; Philip Vire, of Detroit; and Dr. J. I. Peyer and State Senator H. O. Levin, of Baltimore, Md., and M. D. Rosenberg, of Washington.

Mr. Hoover yesterday also received a telegram from a group of social workers in Chicago, praising him for his humanitarian work and expressing reasons why the signers of the telegram were going to vote for him. Jane Adams and a score of other social workers signed the message.

Hoover yesterday declined to comment on the action of Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, in coming out for Gov. Smith.

A telegram was received from Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo, of Mississippi, saying that the information upon which he had based his statement that Mr. Hoover had danced with a colored woman was merely common rumor. Governor Akerson, Mr. Hoover's assistant, said that there was no comment to make.

John McCormack Cables $10,000 for Smith Fund

New York, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The Democratic national headquarters today announced receipt of a campaign contribution of $10,000 from John McCormack, the Irish tenor, cabled from London.

The singer expressed admiration for the campaign being made by Gov. Smith.

SMITH HAS JERSEY, IS MOORE'S BELIEF

Governor, in Baltimore Talk, Also Attacks Religious Intolerance Bitterly.

RITCHIE AGAIN IS SPEAKER

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Gov. Arthur Harry Moore of New Jersey came from his home State to Baltimore tonight to assist the religious issue in the presidential campaign before 700 members of the Southern Maryland Society at their banquet.

Gov. Moore, without mentioning the names of the presidential candidates, after devoting part of his address to subjects foreign to politics, launched into a tirade against religious intolerance, citing many instances where, during crises in American history all creeds had united to save the country.

"It is that issue," he added, "which should be ignored and forgotten. It is a time when we are united in our religious faiths have shown their patriotism for our country."

Gov. Moore's denunciation of religious intolerance was greeted with applause, as was the address of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, who also scored religious intolerance, and the faults of the Republican party.

Gov. Moore also said that he believed that Gov. Smith would carry New Jersey, although he refused to predict that the New Yorker would get the electoral vote.

Morgenthau Defends Smith Stand on Power

New York, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, declared tonight in a radio address that Herbert Hoover "has been forced to take a stand on the issue of religious intolerance and come to a decision with God and man."

"Mr. Hoover didn't take a fine, successful governor of New York," Morgenthau said, "but he did call him a Socialist, because Smith had the courage to resist and to stand for the rights of the people of the United States."

"To Hoover it seems a crime of Socialism for Gov. Smith to prevent our great power from being treated as a great power. He is a great power. He is a great power. He is a great power."

Moses in Friendly Tilt With Harrison

Democrats Piling Dividends for Radio Men, They Are Told at Luncheon.

SMITH HAS JERSEY, IS MOORE'S BELIEF

New York, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Senator George H. Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, during a friendly "debate" at a luncheon of the Radio Manufacturers Association today.

"Radio," said the Democratic senator, "is the only industry to which the Republican party can point in its dreams of prosperity. Democrats are making so many radio speeches that they are causing our industry to pile up huge dividends in reserve."

Senator Harrison said that another prosperous industry was the granite business in Senator Moses' own State, where they are working overtime making tombstones for my political friends of the opposition party who will die after November 3.

Senator Moses began by saying that if Gov. Smith could speak with the clarity displayed by Senator Harrison, "the betting odds would be different than they are."

The radio, he said, has played havoc with politics. No longer can a speech be carried around and read in different places. The radio necessitates a new talk every time. He said, it exaggerates defects in grammar and pronunciation, making them "appear glaring."

Smith Cheers Mar Mrs. Hoover's Visit

Seven Union League Waitresses Discharged for Shouting "Hurrah for Al!"

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Seven waitresses have been dismissed at the Union League. It was learned today after a meeting of the Republican national committee in Washington that this statement was made by Mrs. Hoover, thousands of Republican waitresses, who were in the city of Philadelphia to greet the wife of the Republican presidential nominee.

Charles E. Roberts, chairman of the house committee, said today that the waitresses appeared at the windows of the dressing room fronting on Market street and cheered for Gov. Smith. This, and other streets surrounding the league, was filled with women waiting for an opportunity to greet Mrs. Hoover.

"It was purely a social event," Roberts said, "when suddenly the voices of the waitresses were heard shouting 'Hurrah for Al!' It is not a question of loyalty. Employees of the league vote as they wish, but we require that they be courteous."

"Several members of the league construed the cheers of the girls as insults to our guests. For that reason, they were discharged."

Hoover Aids Princeton Men to Get Suffrage

Special to The Washington Post. Princeton, N. J., Oct. 24.—Herbert Hoover has taken a hand in the fight to restore the right to vote to Princeton undergraduates, it became known here today.

President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton, who is to speak for Hoover in Washington, laid the case for the denial of suffrage rights to Princeton students before the Republican nominee.

Hoover summoned Daniel Pomeroy, Republican national committeeman from New Jersey, into conference with him. Pomeroy said he would go to Trenton to lay the matter before State election authorities.

ATTACK ON HOOVER RESUMED BY BILBO

Nominee Asked if He Holds It Indecent to Dance With Colored Woman.

TELEGRAM IS SENT HERE

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—In a telegram to Herbert Hoover today Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo said his information regarding reports that the Republican presidential candidate had danced with a colored woman was based on rumor, and he had so stated in his speech. He then asked Mr. Hoover to say whether he thought it was "indecent" to dance with a colored woman.

Gov. Akerson, assistant to Mr. Hoover, denied a recent telegram to Gov. Bilbo that Hoover had danced with a negro. Gov. Bilbo's telegram followed.

"In reply to a telegram of the 19th inst., given to the press by your personal representative, Mr. George Akerson, and which telegram I presume meets with your approval, I desire to say that the statement that you had danced with Mary Boozie in Washington was made by me on common rumor and I so stated in my speech in Memphis, Tenn."

"The rumor had been current in Mississippi for some time that Mary Boozie, a colored woman, had danced with Mr. Hoover. This statement was repeated in a public speech in the city of Jackson by another party, and it was upon this information that I made a statement in my speech in Memphis."

"Nothing was said about your dancing with Mary at Mount Bayou. I am sure that you are a person of high character and I am sure that you are a person of high character and I am sure that you are a person of high character."

ANTI-SEMITIC RIOTS SPREAD IN BUDAPEST

Workers Take Part in Disorders; Bomb Found in City's Biggest Movie.

PASSPORT IS TRAMPLED

Budapest, Oct. 24 (N.Y.W.S.).—Anti-Jewish riots, which started several weeks ago in the university here following charges by nationalist students that the government was permitting a greater proportion of Jewish students to enroll than allowed by law, have now developed into a class conflict involving the general public. In the last few days nationalist students who bullied their Jewish classmates have also attacked Jewish-owned socialist and workers' newspapers, labor organizations, precipitating counter demonstrations against the "bourgeois" by the workers.

For the first time since the "proletariat government" of Bela Kun fell, the workers have dared to demonstrate in mass. The sympathy of a large part of the city is with them, as the provocation of the antisemitic students is blamed for the riots.

Government Would Allow Fears. Rioting in Budapest, Debreczin, Pech and other cities was discussed in parliament today. The Hungarian government, of which Premier Bethlen is the head, has issued a statement meant to allay public fears as to the extent and seriousness of the situation.

The police, by stern repressive measures, have prevented any serious rioting around Budapest educational institutions, but only the timely discovery of a heavily charged bomb in the largest motion picture theater here yesterday averted panic and possible loss of life among the audience.

A government manifesto issued at Debreczin warned the population to remain indoors, adding that the military authorities would not be responsible for any casualties that might occur if the necessity for mercilessly suppressing the anti-Jewish demonstrations should arise.

Four universities were closed today as a precaution against possible new outbreaks of disorder.

American Passport Trampled. When the Jewish students in Debreczin were driven from all the classes in the university there, one of the protesters, a young man named Marton Rainer, held up an American passport and defied the mob to touch him.

Rainer, held up an American passport and defied the mob to touch him. The passport was snatched from his hand and trampled on as he was roughly driven off.

Hungarian newspapers later declared that Rainer was not an American citizen, but came to Hungary as a boy of 4; that his parents are Hungarian Jews and that they live in Hungary.

Workers in Budapest, reacting to provocation, fell upon the auto of Archduchess Augusta, which came through Emperor William Street during a clash. She kept a cool head, asked what the trouble was, and told the demonstrators that she was as disgusted as they with the student demonstrations. Her car was then allowed to proceed.

A double guard is on all-night duty in all the streets of Budapest. Several attempts by students to demonstrate in front of the Ministry of Education Building were prevented by gendarmes armed with rifles.

Deputy Challenge.

Budapest, Oct. 24 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Bela Fabian, Jewish deputy in the Hungarian parliament, accepted the challenge to a duel of honor by Secretary Sztranyavsky, whom he charged with responsibility for the anti-Jewish student excesses.

Deputy Fabian chose as his seconds the Jewish Deputies Paul Sandor and Marcel Baracs.

CAR FARE RAISE WAITS ON MERGER

pending merger agreement on terms acceptable to the companies.

Announcement of the commission's action was made in two statements. One, an informal draft of the formal decisional order, was as follows:

"A formal hearing on the application of the Capital Traction Co. under date of June 14, 1928, for an increase in fares on certain of its street car and bus lines was held on September 10, 11, 12, 13, 21, 22, 23 and 25, 1928.

"This commission has approved and recommended to Congress a unification agreement between the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. as parties, which is now pending, and which will probably be acted on at the session of Congress, now but five weeks away. The commission believes that a merger is vital to the interests of both companies and to the people of the District of Columbia and that it enter an order raising the rates this time might seriously interfere with favorable action by Congress.

Disposes of the Question. "Upon a full consideration of the commission without passing upon or determining any of the issues involved have reached the conclusion to dismiss the application of the Capital Traction Co. for an increase in fare without prejudice to the company's right to renew its application at any time subsequent to March 5, 1929."

The statement on the agreement follows: "The order issued today by the unanimous decision of the commission definitely disposes of the question of increase in car fares pending the action of the coming session of Congress on the merger.

"The companies agreed not to contest the order nor to seek any increase in fares pending this action.

"It was also agreed that the record submitted in the recent hearings shall be available for use should any further application for fare raises be filed."

"Gratifying" was the adjective applied by William A. Roberts, vice chairman of the utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, to the dismissal of the higher fare petition.

"Although," Roberts said, "the decision of the commission is not a final determination of our transportation problem, it is indeed gratifying to know that for a few months at least the car riders will not have to bear an increased burden. It seemed impossible to me that a rate adjustment should be even considered while a matter of such great importance as the merger of the street car companies was pending before the Senate."

"The solution adopted by the commission was the most obvious of those urged by the representatives of the Federation of Citizens' Associations. It will be a great relief to be able to devote more of my time to my family and my private affairs."

CHAIRMAN FOKKER FIRM GETS $4,000,000 CAPITAL

Combine Plans 40-Hour Air Service From Pacific to New York.

WILL BUILD NEW PLANT

New York, Oct. 24 (N.Y.W.S.).—A reorganized Fokker of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America with an influx of $4,000,000 new capital and plans for an immediate expansion in production, including construction of a new plant in California, was completed today at a conference of capitalists from all parts of the United States in the offices of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation.

The money group is headed by James Talbot, of Los Angeles, president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation, and Harry M. Henshaw, president of Western Air Express, one of the country's oldest and most successful commercial air lines.

The combine, coming as it does on the heels of Western Air Express' recent purchase of twelve giant Wasp-motored Fokker F-10 passenger airplanes for the announced purpose of establishing a thirteen-hour service from Los Angeles to the Mississippi River, is construed as a challenge to the Transcontinental Air Transport group and its scheme for a 48-hour air-rail passenger line from New York to Los Angeles.

Will Tie Up With Railroads. Henshaw, in fact, made no secret of his intention to tie up with some railroads in St. Louis, or elsewhere, that would deliver patrons of his air line to New York "in less than 40 hours" after they leave the West Coast.

He said also that the combine would begin operation within 90 days, whereas Transcontinental Air Transport's most recent announcement tentatively set the beginning of operations as "early next spring."

Under the scheme of reorganization, Anthony H. G. Fokker Aircraft Corporation, will devote his entire time to designing and developing new types of aircraft, Henshaw taking over the responsibility of directing policy, production and sales. The two present plants of the concern, at Teterboro Airport, Newark Heights, N. J., and Wheeling, W. Va., will be enlarged and remodeled to step up production in the types of planes best suited to their capacities.

Construction in 60 Days. Actual construction of the California plant, the site of which has not been announced, is to begin within 60 days, according to Henshaw. The company will continue to build planes of various types, ranging from small sport models for two persons to military transports and huge commercial airliners with a capacity up to 30 or more persons.

Western Air Express, of which Henshaw will remain head, is to continue operation independent of the production concern.

Officials of the new Fokker Aircraft Corporation as chosen today are: Henshaw, president and general manager; Talbot, chairman of the board; Harold B. Tibbitts, New York attorney, vice president; T. C. Gregory, San Francisco attorney; W. P. Wilson, Wheeling, W. Va., capitalist; Louis H. Piper, Minneapolis Air Line operator; John A. Love, St. Louis banker; G. L. Lewis, New York attorney, and J. Brooks B. Parker, Philadelphia insurance broker, directors, and H. A. Reid, secretary-treasurer.

STREET CAR FARES.

The Public Utilities Commission has wisely decided to dismiss for the present the application of the Capital Traction Co. for an increase of fare. The company, on its part, is well advised in awaiting the action of Congress on the proposal to merge the traction companies. There is every reason to believe that Congress will pass upon this proposal at the forthcoming session. If it does not, the companies will be free to apply for readjustment of fares.

Assuming that the merger proposal will be approved by Congress, it is evident that it would have been injudicious in the meantime to grant an increased fare rate to one of the companies involved. The traction business would be more or less demoralized if one company could charge 10 cents while others were held to 8 cents. The public has a right to uniform fares and universal transfers, and sooner or later Congress will affirm this right. Traction companies are set up for the convenience of the public as well as for the benefit of stockholders. The public convenience requires universal service at a fixed rate throughout the District and its environs. If the merger accomplishes nothing else it will benefit the public in this respect. The question of a just rate of fare is very properly left to Congress in connection with the merger question.

CRIMINAL LIQUOR CASES.

During the year ended June 30 there were brought into the Federal courts 55,729 criminal prohibition cases, an increase over the preceding year of 15,020. The number of cases terminated during the year was 58,429, leaving more than 18,000 cases pending. In the record of cases terminated there were 48,820 convictions, 1,400 acquittals, 6,000 discontinued or nolle prossed, and 2,000 dismissed or quashed. There were 4,800 trials by jury, an increase of 1,100 over the preceding year, and pleas of guilty numbered 45,295, an increase of 16,414 as compared with the preceding year. Jail and prison sentences imposed reached a total of 7,700 years, an increase of 48 per cent.

It is interesting to note such a high percentage of convictions—34 to each acquittal. Obviously it does not pay to get caught violating the Federal prohibition laws. Nor will it be reassuring to bootleggers generally to know that the 7,700-year aggregate jail and prison sentences marks the highest aggregate of sentences imposed since the prohibition law went into effect. Upon the record of accomplishment during the year ended June 30 it is to be expected that the Department of Justice will ask for increased appropriations from Congress for the still more effective enforcement of the prohibition laws.

OBEY THE FIRE SIGNAL.

One of the victims of Tuesday's traffic tragedy is dead and the other is not expected to survive. The driver of the fire battalion chief's motor car which struck the two women has been arrested, pending the outcome of the coroner's inquest. The authorities are inquiring into the question of responsibility for the accident and will endeavor to frame better safety rules for the protection of the public against collisions with fire apparatus, which has the right of way in rushing to fires.

Accidents can not be entirely prevented when fire engines and fire officials' automobiles appear suddenly in traffic, going at such speed as to make it almost impossible for the public to take warning from the sirens. But accidents can be avoided, as a rule, if traffic will instantly halt and permit the fire apparatus to pass. The necessity for stopping traffic in such cases is not sufficiently drilled into the public. Stringent rules should be adopted and enforced, inflicting punishment upon motorists and street car drivers who do not heed the fire signal.

Pedestrians are subjected to great danger during a fire call, on account of collisions between fire apparatus and motor cars and street cars. Vehicles are likely to be buried upon sidewalks and into crowds. The only practicable precaution that can be taken to prevent such accidents is to place only the most expert drivers at the wheel of fire apparatus, and to stop all traffic. These cars must make speed if life and property are to be saved. As they can not take the time to warn their way through traffic they must be permitted to ignore the usual rules and go forward by any path that is open, whether on the left side of the street or otherwise.

It is a choice between taking human life in traffic and saving human life from fire. Since life is almost always endangered by a fire, and since a few seconds may tell the story of rescue or wholesale cremation, no rules should be adopted which would prevent fire apparatus from reaching the danger spot in the quickest possible time. The alternative, therefore, is to safeguard life on the street by instantly stopping all traffic. This halt should be long enough to make sure that all fire apparatus has passed through. Strict and instantaneous observance of the fire signal is necessary on the part of pedestrians as well as drivers. Their lives may pay the forfeit of neglect.

THE EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

The Protestant Episcopal convention has honored itself by approving the plan for the restoration of Wakefield, the birthplace of Washington. This action is a glimmer of patriotism that encourages the country in the hope that this church will ultimately resist the steady encroachment of pacifism and disloyalty which has been so manifest during the convention. With great ingenuity, the pacifist propagandists intimidated or deluded one strong churchman after another, until the point was reached where decided opposition was made to the adoption of a formal word of thanksgiving to God for the blessing of national independence. By only one vote, the convention managed to screw up courage enough to agree with the Almighty in looking upon the Fourth of July as a day of blessing.

Now the convention goes a bit further by approving the restoration of the birthplaces of Washington. This is progress in patriotism. Having succeeded in approving of national independence, the convention favors action that will rescue from ruin and oblivion the place where the country's savior was born.

It is too bad that the convention did not take the bit in its teeth and strike down the politicians who prevented it from adopting a resolution declaring that the church would keep out of politics. Many members of both bodies favored such a resolution, but the politicians were too quick and keen for them. There is much to be gained by pacifists and internationalists by dragging the Protestant Episcopal and all other churches into politics. With that backing, skillfully dangled before the eyes of members of Congress, the professional pacifists and other agents of foreign propaganda may succeed in intimidating Congress and preventing the construction of warships needed for the Nation's defense. That is the object of the political clique that has succeeded in having its way in the convention that is now about to adjourn.

But the convention has managed to remain sufficiently American to recognize the Fourth of July and to favor plans to rescue Washington's birthplace from shameful neglect. That is to its credit, even if it did refuse to forbid the misuse of the church by professional pacifist politicians.

THE COURT OF PLEPOUNDER.

The value of historical research and of intelligent means taken to promote it is continually receiving forcible illustration. The discovery of manuscripts, books, inscriptions, and other memorials of a remote past so often reward the efforts of the patient and systematic investigator that hope is held out that other finds of equal or greater importance may yet be made. What, for example, could the student of English literature more ardently desire than to behold the lost plays of Edmund Spenser brought forth once more into the light of day? They might, or might not, add to Spenser's already great reputation, but it would be at least interesting to see them and compare them with other similar products of the Elizabethan age. In view of the unearthing of Gower's "Speculum Meditantis" or "Mirour de l'Omme," after a disappearance for so many centuries, it is surely not entirely unreasonable to hope that some deliver into the obscurity of the past may yet emerge with the much later Spenser manuscript clasped to his heart.

Enlightened methods of approach are, of course, almost indispensable to secure results. Some time ago the corporation of the ancient City of Bristol, in England, established an archives department for a thorough exploration of the very old documents preserved in its muniment room. Already three discoveries of the highest interest have justified this forward and up-to-date policy. The latest of these has reference to the actions of the Court of Piepowder attached to the ancient St. James' Fair.

Courts of Piepowder were courts of record instituted to do justice in commercial cases arising in connection with the particular fair or market to which they were assigned. Blackstone thus gives the probable derivation of their peculiar title:

"The lowest, and at the same time the most expeditious, court of justice known to the law of England, is the court of piepowder, so called from the dusty feet of the suitors; or, according to Sir Edward Coke, because justice is there done as speedily as dust can fall from the foot."

The origin of the St. James' Fair at Bristol was lost in the mists of antiquity until the recent discovery of three volumes of its actions, dating from 1629 to 1695. These volumes trace the history of the fair to the first grant to the priory, of St. James' by William, Earl of Gloucester, and show its confirmation by King Henry II, the disposition of the dissolved priory by King Henry VIII, and the continuance of fair and court under the secular administration of the corporation of the city.

It is interesting to note that this fair, which was a mart for merchants from all parts of the known world during the Middle Ages, and as late as the time of King Charles II drew Turkish pirates to the Bristol Channel, continues still to exist, though, of course, in a greatly modified form. Assuredly it is a satisfaction to have the history of so ancient an institution traced to its beginning and to have its successive stages of development so clearly shown.

THE NEW RADIO SYSTEM.

O. H. Caldwell, member of the Federal Radio Commission, in discussing radio before the Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce this week, asked two sensible questions and made several pertinent suggestions. Shall the radio broadcasting situation be cleaned up now and for all time, he asked, and good radio reception be restored to the millions of listeners? Or shall radio be allowed to slip back to the confusion of interference and heterodynes that have beset the broadcasting waves for the past two years? That is the issue before radio listeners during the next 30 days, for on November 11, he says, the public will have within its grasp a radio set-up that will bring about great improvement.

Yet from now till November 11, he cautions, public sympathy will be appealed to by some few selfish broadcasters and the aid of groups of listeners will be sought by the "poisonous statement that this or that station is to have its service unduly cut. To such selfish appeals Mr. Caldwell urges listeners to reserve their judgment, for investigation will show, he says, that the allocation assignments are generally fair and equitable to all. Time reductions, time sharing, power and wave length reductions, he adds, were inevitable in the rearrangement of 600 stations, whereby only 315 will hereafter be permitted on the air simultaneously.

The realignment of radio has been no easy task. Whether or not it has been accomplished successfully by the commission remains to be seen. On November 11, and thereafter, the public will have an opportunity to determine for itself whether or not improvement has been brought about, and if the answer is negative there are ways by which correction may be made.

It is quite possible that individual stations here and there deserve more liberal consideration. For example, WGY, the General Electric station in Schenectady, seems to have earned, through the years it has been broadcasting, a better position in the new schedule than it has received. The commission, however, will hear its representatives and those of any other station that feels it has not been treated fairly, and if a satisfactory case can be made in favor of the broadcaster his assignment will be readjusted. The new arrangement, however, is obviously based upon the desire of the commission to bring back to the American people good radio reception, equitably apportioned throughout the Nation as required by law. It is entitled to a fair public trial.

ST. ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL.

At a cost of $570,000, the new medical and surgical building provided for St. Elizabeth's Hospital will presently be under course of erection. The new building will provide equipment for hospital care of exactly the same order as is found in any other kind of hospital. The wiping out of distinction between sane and insane in hospital treatment will arrest the attention of hospital authorities and insane experts the world over.

It is now recognized that the closer the insane person can be brought into normal relationship with the sane the better his chance for recovery. The large proportion of cases of recovery in some measure harks back to St. Elizabeth's. The Government has been a kindly ward for the mentally infirm, and the money and attention that have been devoted to the problems surrounding their care serve as an example to the States.

The medical and surgical hospital will contain 200 beds, and the equipment of the building will be of the most modern nature. All the usual clinics will be present, and any form of physical malady needing medicine or surgery will receive the full care that is given to the sane in the best-appointed hospitals. It is well to have this matter stressed as too often in the past there has been, in similar institutions, too little attention paid to the physical disorders of the insane. Here, at St. Elizabeth's, the afflicted will receive the same service that any other body of 5,000 individuals deserving medical attention could possibly obtain.

BUILDING AMERICAN SHIPS.

The Shipping Board has authorized a construction loan to the Export Shipping Corporation to assist it in building four passenger cargo vessels for operation between New York and Mediterranean ports. The loan will total about $4,500,000, representing three-fourths of the total cost of the vessels. The loan will be at the lowest rate of interest of any outstanding Government obligation except postal savings bonds, and will be repayable in 20 equal annual installments. This is the first loan to be made under the Jones-White merchant marine act.

Authorization of this loan marks the beginning of an important era in the history of the American merchant marine. The loan provisions of the Jones-White law promise to stimulate interest in shipbuilding and operation to such an extent that the United States will again attain a position of importance in world shipping. The country is determined to create a merchant marine strong enough to establish American independence of foreign shipping interests. It will prove not only an economic blessing to American industry, but it will also serve as an efficient reserve for the United States Navy.

WATCH YOUR HEALTH.

From the days of Cicero to the present, the question of stretching the brittle span of life has been prominent in interest. Diet has usually played a leading role in longevity prescriptions, but each individual is a law unto himself in the matter of diet and careful dieting alone will not insure length of life.

The director of public health of New York State points out that life is bound up in strength and energy. It is not so much a matter of how one functions as whether he has the vitality to function to the full measure. When one gets to the age of 40 it is well to seek regular examination by a physician. Once a year, at least, every individual should submit himself to the medical man for a survey of his anatomy.

Such service is given free by many of the insurance companies, so that there is really no excuse if their clients do not get their annual health chart. If a man is as old as his arteries, it is well to have such care that they shall not be under the strain of becoming thickened or hardened prematurely. Overweight is a danger sign at middle age. Those who are seriously overweight may well have a regimen prescribed that will lessen their avoidable and lengthen their lives. After all, the care of the health is the best investment man can make, the one that lies behind all others. Health protection usually is not a difficult matter. There are many men on the golf links today, says an authority, who otherwise would be in their graves. A family physician can prescribe golf as well as he can prescribe anything else. He can also reduce the worry load as well as the flesh load. Therefore it is wise to obtain medical survey, at the least, once a year. Once a month would be better in some cases.

If a child of ten has sense enough to drive a car, it wasn't inherited from the parents who trust their car to a kid of that age.

The best example of poetic justice is afforded by the undertaker who sticks a holdup gang $15,000 for a funeral.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Gas Rate.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In Baltimore gas is supplied to the people at 20 cents a thousand cubic feet. Here in Washington we pay $1, and the gas company is wanting a raise. Baltimore is only 40 miles distant, and it is hard to understand why gas is so much cheaper there than in Washington.

Signals From Mars.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So the British scientists can not understand the signals from Mars. What a pity the Martians do not understand the English language! Perhaps the fellow up in Mars forgot to leave off his H's.

This Mars signaling business is only another turn in the old-time spirit rapping fad. Some years ago I attended a seance given by one of the famous mediums of the country, where written answers were supplied from spirits. One of the audience expressed a desire to have a communication from his father who had been dead a number of years. It quickly came, written out in excellent English. The son expressed his delight that his father had learned English in the land of spirits, as when he died he knew only German, and could not write that.

English is a great language, but it is rather stretching things to expect the people in Mars to speak or write it.

Utilize Water Power.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been estimated that in this country we have 130,000,000 horsepower in our inland water sources going to waste annually, because not utilized. Many have advocated the development of this great power by the Government. The Government can do much better than that; it can encourage by liberal legislation individual endeavor in this direction. Our trend for many years has been toward stifling individual effort. Let us turn about and try the other method.

Much of this 130,000,000 is in the South. The South is a great cotton producing country. Let Congress turn its attention to encouraging the developing of this wasted power and the increase of cotton manufacturing in the South, and much of the present complaint as to farming needs will be cleared away. Now that electricity has introduced a new method of conveying power it is no longer required that the factory plant shall immediately adjoin the water power site. Water power is the cheapest power known. We are, indeed, a wasteful people when we burn our coal to produce power when such a source of power is running free to the ocean, and only needs to be harnessed to make it earn its way. Let us try the experiment of encouraging individual enterprise, instead of stifling it.

An Example of Government Operation.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When a great crisis was confronting the country and there was evident uncertainty among the people, Patrick Henry said: "I have no lamp by which my feet are guided but the lamp of experience." A crisis is now confronting the country, and again there is evident uncertainty among the people, and it will be well for them and the country if they let their feet be guided by experience. There has been an increasing clamor for the Government to take over all public utilities, and one of the candidates for the Presidency has declared himself in favor of that movement.

What has been the experience of the Government in that direction? During the great war the Government took over the railroad lines, and with what result? The number of employees was enormously increased, until they Sorrow Will Punish Itself by Giving Flowers It Can't Afford.

—By ROBERT QUILLEN—

It has become the fashion to deride and denounce "morticians" and to charge them with profiteering, and doubtless there are undertakers whose heartless greed and trickery justify condemnation.

But there is another side of the story, little known to people who have had no experience of grief.

Sorrow almost invariably awakens the conscience. It remembers neglect and unkindness, and if years to make amends and express the affection too long denied expression.

The dead can't smell the flowers or hear the words of endearment, but the living may lessen their hurt by doing all they can to express their contrition and their love.

It is suggested that the State dispose of bodies, but the bereaved can not and will not surrender their privilege. They wish to say to the world: "Leave me alone to bury my dead."

And they wish to spend money—to spend all they can—to show the dead how genuine their grief is. An expensive casket and expensive flowers afford their only means of expressing sorrow and doing homage, and they spend their money gladly. Grief does not count the cost. In many instances it wishes to punish itself.

Some time ago a prominent New York man died in my part of the country. Members of the family called on a local undertaker to select a casket. The most expensive one in stock was made of bronze and priced at $1,500. "That will do," said the family, "until we reach New York. We can get a better one there."

A country girl died near my village and her brothers came to the local undertaker to get a casket. He showed them one priced at $350 and they were not impressed. They were on the point of leaving when he revealed another, very similar to the first in appearance, and priced it at $500. With that they were content. Apparently $500 represented the limit of their ability to pay, and they were determined to go the limit.

There are cheap coffins and cheap funerals. Competition cuts prices. In one large city, the "want ads" offered casket, hearse and limousine for $35. The poor and the miserly are not without recourse.

It is true that some "morticians" charge much for nothing; true that a "swell" funeral is like a gold mine; true that vain and silly people make a funeral a social function much like a wedding, and deliberately make a show to impress the world; but these are exceptions.

Simple and fine people are dignified by grief, and these forget the world. They do not spend money to make a show, but they wish to spend all they can to honor their dead; and if undertakers could not afford them a means of expressing what is in their hearts, they would buy it elsewhere.

going attitude to right-minded men and women in Europe.

There are certain legal technicalities that are intended to favor the supposed criminal in cases where the guilt is unproved. When lawyers use these technicalities to obstruct the course of the law in a case like Hickman's, public opinion should be strong enough on the side of decency to make it very uncomfortable for those lawyers. There should be enough high-minded men of the legal profession to see that they are taken care of. Delays in dealing with monstrous crimes like Hickman's undermine the very foundations of society and make the men who cause them equally guilty with the murderer himself. It is well that some newspapers have the courage and the good sense to speak out plainly in such a matter.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS.
The first-year girls at Albion need not be disappointed because a so-called intelligence test shows them apparently slightly inferior intellectually to the first-year men, says the Detroit Free Press. The fallibility of such tests is only relatively more easily demonstrated than the absurdity of most of them, as intelligence barometers. A young woman from Gotham once tangled with the Chicago police over the rules of the road and they gave her a brain test. "Who's the mayor of Chicago?" they asked her. "You ought to know who your own mayor is," she replied. "All I know is that Jimmy Walker is mayor of New York—and he's good enough for me." She was nobody's fool. The best intelligence test is contact with the realities of this world.

The confusion of intelligence with knowledge with wisdom is a triple play that does not appear in life's batting average.

PRESS COMMENT

Not in This Age.

Gloversville Leader: "Lies: Children can fool the parents, but the parents can't fool the children."

Feminine Economy.

Detroit News: Fashion changes have been marvelous: A girl who was 12 in 1918 never outgrew her dresses.

This Way Out.

Des Moines Register: A gangster's funeral runs into thousands of dollars—and it's worth it to all concerned.

Appearances Are Deceitful.

Los Angeles Times: And you can't tell by the nose elevation in the back seat how much the little man in the front seat owes the grocer.

Among the Antiques.

Detroit News: What has become of the old-fashioned celluloid campaign button that could be read without glasses in the next county?

All Fun, No Work.

Cincinnati Enquirer: The modern daughter wants to run everything around the house but the sewing machine and vacuum sweeper.

Reptilian Brand.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph: According to Variety, a St. Louis mad wag calls it bullfrog gin, because "you drink a little, hop a little and croak."

The Way to Happiness.

Achilles Globe: If you are unhappy, it probably is because you are mad at somebody. Forget the folks you do not like, and in five minutes the world will seem brighter to you.

But the Books.

Philadelphia Inquirer: It is said that Americans spend twice as much for candy as they do for books. Well, why not? Most of the candy, it must be admitted, is fit to eat.

Absolutely Brainless.

Houston Post-Dispatch: News advice says that a girl who climbed into an auto for a ride with strange men was thrown out and her brain injured. It doesn't seem possible.

Would Never Do.

Minneapolis Journal: Thomas A. Edison is working on the invention of a mechanical stenographer. This leads to the consideration of musical comedy with mechanical chorus girls.

Be Thankful If You Get Turkey.

Minneapolis Journal: The Prairie Farmer states that the prices of turkeys will be somewhat higher this fall, due to scarcity. The country was almost prepared for that shock.

Trouble Ahead.

Indianapolis News: American representatives are to be invited to confer in Europe with reparations experts, a move that can be counted on to get round to the subject of war debts.

Timely Tip.

Buffalo Courier-Express: Several members of the British cabinet, it is learned, are breeding hogs on their country estates. There's a hint here for certain American statesmen, whose chances of bringing home any bacon are rapidly dwindling.

Mussolini's Gift.

Baltimore Sun: Those who picture Mussolini as a brutish fellow, interested only in power, and chiefly personal power, will have to read the dispatch which explains that he has donated to Fascist charities 100,000 lire of the royalties from his writings for American periodicals. That is, indeed, quite admirable, and like all such deeds will soften the opinions many hold of the Italian dictator.

SUICIDE NOT SLAYER, SEEMS BELIEF NOW

Fred Kaser Had Good Chance to Prove His Innocence, Judge Declares.

NOTE DENIED HIS GUILT

Osborne, Kans., Oct. 24 (A.P.)—Fred Kaser, young farmer, of Covert, who killed himself yesterday so he would not be compelled to stand trial for the alleged murder last May of his brother's family of eight, had a good chance to prove himself innocent, District Judge W. R. Mitchell said today.

Judge Mitchell said Kaser had convinced him in a conference last week that there was "considerable doubt" that he had any connection with the death of his brother's family.

"I have never seen a guilty man who talked so straight," Judge Mitchell said. "He looked me straight in the eyes and said he was innocent. I did not want him to talk with me about the case, but he insisted on it."

McCaslin, of Osborne, attorney for Kaser at the preliminary hearing, resigned from the case recently because Kaser's father, a well-to-do farmer, refused to bear the expense of the case, Judge Mitchell said.

Before taking his own life Kaser wrote a note saying he had nothing to do with the crime. His trial was to have started today.

The couple eloped on October 13 and were married in New York City by Deputy City Clerk Joseph J. McCormack in the municipal chapel. Young Meville, who is 27 and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is coauthor with Glenn Collett, national woman golf champion, of her book, which will be issued shortly.

Of Motor Firm, Is Dead

Moline, Ill., Oct. 24 (A.P.)—W. L. Velie, 62, president of the Velie Motor Corporation and the Velie Monocoupe Aircraft Corporation, died at his home tonight after a two-day illness. His death followed by a few hours the announcement that his firm had perfected a large type airplane.

Velie was the grandson of John Deere, founder of Deere & Co., makers of agricultural machinery, and was connected with that company for many years. Thirty years ago he organized the Velie Carriage Co., and five years later the Velie Motor Corporation. His active interest in the airplane industry began this year.

RED GRANGE DENIES PATERNITY CHARGE

Football Star Says That Girl's Accusation Is an Attempt at Blackmail.

PROMISES TO FIGHT CASE

Chicago, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—Harold "Red" Grange, former Illinois gridiron star, was charged in a warrant sworn out today by Helen Flogek, 22, with being the father of her 7-month-old baby. The warrant was issued by Judge William Fetzner.

Grange issued a statement to the United Press tonight, denying the charges and saying it was an attempt to "blackmail him into paying money." He said attorneys had visited him before the warrant was issued and that he had a letter in his possession from the girl in which she offered to drop the charges for $800.

Attorneys who appeared with Miss Flogek told Judge Fetzner that their client would be willing to settle for "what the law allows." Under the law, the girl would receive approximately $1,150.

Doing Song and Dance Number.

The former gridiron star, noted for his sensational college career and later on professional fields, is playing in a Chicago theater in a show called "Come on, Red." He is doing a song and dance number.

The child was born last March, attorneys for Miss Flogek contend. They charged that Grange failed to defray the girl's hospital bills. Grange said he would fight the case and decided to ignore the request for $800 in order to "vindicate my reputation," and to "disprove of similar attempts at blackmail."

"The only knowledge I have of the case," Grange said, "comes from the representatives of the woman, an attorney who visited me and told me the girl was hard up and needed money and would settle the case for $800."

Mrs. Mary Berkmeier Quinn was the attorney who appeared before Judge Fetzner.

One of Thousands, He Says.

"I do not know anything about the case or about the girl," Grange continued, "other than to say that she is just one of thousands who have written to me in the last few years and whose letter still remains unanswered."

"I am told the girl was an employee at the Morrison Hotel during the period I was stopping there. If so, she is just one of a large number of employees with whom I had merely a chance acquaintance, because all the girls, as well as the male help, called me by name whenever they saw me."

"Every day I am the recipient of numerous letters and telephone calls from girls and I pay no more attention to them than I did to the letter sent to me by this girl."

"There is nothing in this case except an attempt at blackmail and I will fight it most strenuously to vindicate my reputation and right to be unbothered by people who are seeking easy money."

Paris Official Accused In Naval Treaty Leak

Paris, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Charges under the espionage act have been filed against Count De Nollet of the foreign office, Roger De Le Planque, a newspaper man, "and others" in connection with the publication of a secret foreign office document on the Anglo-French naval pact in the Hearst papers last month.

The homes of the two men have been searched and an investigating magistrate has been designated to gather evidence and hear witnesses. He will then determine whether the case should go to trial and who should be prosecuted.

Husband of Kaiser's Sister to Join Circus

Paris, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The newspaper Paris Midi today said that Alexander Subkoff, youthful husband of Princess Victoria Schaumburg-Lippe, and brother-in-law of the former kaiser, was under contract to play in a cavalry act in the Ranvy Circus, which will open in Paris late in the winter.

The paper quoted Subkoff as saying that he wanted to earn his own living and that employment with a traveling circus would facilitate his obtaining passports, which he has found difficult hitherto.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Carrie R. Vose, late of Boston, was granted a divorce from George A. Vose, son of a wealthy piano manufacturer, in district court today. The ground was desertion, but Mrs. Vose testified that another woman was involved. She mentioned no name.

WALDMAN BOYS DIED IN ACCIDENT, RULING

Medical Examiner Makes Decision After Police Drop Investigations.

MOTHER'S VERSION TOLD

New York, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The deaths of two young sons of Mrs. Milton S. Waldman, who fell thirteen stories from a hotel roof last Friday, were pronounced "entirely accidental" by Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris at the conclusion of his investigation today.

The children, Terence, 4½ years old, and Benjamin, 14 months old, were heirs to part of the fortune of their grandfather, the late Benjamin Guggenheim. They fell from the roof of the Hotel Surrey while their mother was waiting for a friend who occupies a penthouse there.

Police twice announced the deaths were accidental, but Dr. Norris made his own investigation "in justice," he said, "not only to the public but to Mrs. Waldman as well."

Mrs. Waldman, who collapsed after the deaths of her sons and has been under care of physicians, did not testify at the hearing before Dr. Norris. Her family physician, Dr. Newton Booth Waller, summoned after the tragedy, said he found Mrs. Waldman in a "very emotional" state.

"She said the little boy was in her arms," Dr. Waller testified; "that she was tired and walking around when Terry (the older child) wanted to get up too; that he was always jealous, that he tugged at her and then she didn't remember exactly what happened."

Radio Corporation Appeals Tube Case

Asks Supreme Court to Rule on Stipulated Use of Own Products.

Another big radio lawsuit is knocking at the door of the Supreme Court. Having lost in the lower courts, the Radio Corporation of America, as the owner of patents which, it asserted, were used in substantially all of the principal receivers now on the market, yesterday asked the highest tribunal to decide whether in licensing other manufacturers to use its patents in their receiving sets it can require them to purchase the tubes made by the Radio Corporation.

The Radio Corporation declared that after protracted litigation it had won all of its infringement suits and was in a position to put out of business many of its competitors by refusing to permit them to use its patents. It decided, however, according to its claim, not to do that, but to license competitors, reserving in the contract a stipulation that the competitors should buy their tubes used in the receiving sets from the Radio Corporation. The lower courts held, however, that this agreement could not be enforced because it was a violation of the Clayton act.

Girl Misses Hand Grip On Trapeze; Is Killed

Meibourne, Australia, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—A missed hand grip in mid-air today was responsible for the death of Valma Schultz, member of an American troupe "The Flying Le Mars," who have been doing a feature circus turn here.

As Valma was hurtling through space, a second girl performer, hanging from a trapeze, caught one of her wrists and deflected her course. She struck the wall of the building and bounced from the edge of the safety net into the audience.

Two Coast Guard Cutters Drag Tanker Off Sand

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The American oil tanker Vaba, aground off Nag's Head, along the North Carolina coast yesterday, was floated with the high tide at 2:45 o'clock this morning, by the Coast Guard cutters Manning and Mascoutin and proceeded on her way to Tampico.

The tanker was bound from New York for a cargo of oil from the Southern port, when she struck a sand shoal.

Frigidaire breaks all sales records

With more than fifty kinds and types of electric refrigerators on the market, it is a significant fact that there are now more Frigidaires in use than all other makes combined.

There are definite reasons for Frigidaire's predominant leadership.

There are reasons why Frigidaire sales today are greater than in any similar period in the history of the business.

There are reasons why production of the past sixty days is more than double that of a year ago—and yet thousands of orders remain unfilled.

The Choice of Rulers Throughout the World

The preference for this one make of electric refrigerator is worldwide. Frigidaire is serving in the homes of Lloyd George, of England; the President of France, the Premier of Italy, the King of Spain, the King of Egypt, the Amir of Afghanistan, the President of Switzerland, and others.

Leviathan Is Frigidaire-Equipped

Experienced engineers chose Frigidaire for the equipment of the Leviathan, flagship of the United States Lines. It supplies the refrigeration for some of the world's most modern trains in England and America.

Choice of Apartment Owners Everywhere

From coast to coast Frigidaire is the standard equipment for apartment houses. Among the thousands of buildings equipped, the following are typical: Tudor City, the great apartment development of New York City, has 843 Frigidaires; the Lee Plaza, of Detroit, has 196 Frigidaires; the Schenley Apartments, of Pittsburgh, have 231 Frigidaires; the Seneca, of Chicago, has 185 Frigidaires, and the Marshall Field Garden Apartment Homes building interests, with which are associated the names of Baer & Sholz, McKeever & Goss, Boss & Phelps, Goldsmith & Keller, Kennedy Brothers, Wardman, Cafritz, Bralove, Howar, Warren, Rust, Phillips, Sansbury and many others have purchased thousands of Frigidaires.

Wherever dependability, economy, quiet operation and long life are the requirements, the choice is Frigidaire.

Frigidaire for Important Hospital Service

Hospitals throughout the world have selected Frigidaire equipment, including Walter Reed at Washington, Johns Hopkins at Baltimore, Providence Hospital at Detroit, Battle Creek Sanitarium, and the leading hospitals in almost every city. Frigidaire provides the electric refrigeration for hotels, for club houses, for Y. M. C. A.'s, for Y. W. C. A.'s, and institutions where careful analysis precedes choice.

Saving One Manufacturer $40,000 a Year

Frigidaire is the equipment chosen by large manufacturing plants such as the Bethlehem Steel Co., the Baldwin Locomotive Works, the Pennsylvania Railroad, the H. J. Heinz Co., Standard Oil, and a typical example is the Carnegie Steel Co., where 340 Frigidaire-equipped water coolers are effecting a saving estimated at over $40,000 a year.

What Happened at Houston

At the Democratic Convention in Houston, where the heat was excessive, 90 per cent of the water coolers in the great Convention Hall were Frigidaires, and everyone of them served without interruption throughout the convention.

Chain Stores Are Frigidaire-Equipped

Frigidaires are used by the great chain store systems, including A. & P., Kresge, Lyons Incorporated, of England; Independent Grocers' Alliance, Piggy Wiggly, and 75 others.

Frigidaire is the overwhelming choice of ice cream manufacturers, where the savings effected are enormous.

Frigidaire is the choice of thousands of the most modern dairy farms in the United States, and 90 per cent of the leading soda fountain manufacturers of America have chosen this one make of electric refrigeration because of its dependability and economy.

New Frigidaire Is Incredibly Quiet

The announcement of the New Frigidaire has met with a universal response. Its beauty, its power, its ease of installation, its incredibly quiet operation, its economy, and its low price have given added impetus to an already overwhelming public preference.

Careful analysis, engineering tests, actual experience have led the vast majority of careful buyers to choose Frigidaire.

Proven Dependability and Low Cost

If you are considering the purchase of an electric refrigerator from which you are entitled to expect long years of service, economy in the use of current, absolute dependability, Frigidaire, with its limitless resources, its vast experience and the economies it effects through mass production, offers value that has no equal.

SYNODS VOTE DOWN NEW PRAYER BOOK

London and Liverpool Balk at Allowing Bishops to Authorize Usage.

WILL UPHOLD PENALTIES

London, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Fourteen hundred clergymen of the diocese of London, meeting in the first synod called in the diocese since the Reformation, today voted against permanent reservation of the sacrament and against authorizing their bishop to use his discretion in the employment of the revised prayer book, which was rejected by the House of Commons.

The Right Rev. Arthur Roley Windington-Ingram, Bishop of London, told the clergymen that he sought "guidance" when he summoned the synod. In view of the dilemma left by parliament's rejection of the revised prayer book, he submitted to them a number of specific questions for vote. A proposal to give the bishop discretion to authorize the use of the revised prayer book, pending final settlement of the question, was rejected 472 to 523. Another proposal to authorize him to regulate the permanent reservation of the sacrament for the sick and in accordance with the provisions of the revised book, was overwhelmingly voted down 292 to 655.

Will Support Discipline. The synod did, however, empower the bishop to allow reservation for the sick under exceptional circumstances, but only provisionally in each instance.

The clergy also were asked this question: "Are you willing to support the bishops of the church in endeavoring, for the sake of peace in the church, to make sure that practices which are consistent neither with the prayer book of 1662 nor with the revised book shall cease?"

The answer was in the affirmative, 535 to 493.

There was a dramatic moment at the opening of the synod, when the Rev. G. E. Milnes, vicar of St. Chad's, Hagston, an East London parish, read from manuscript a statement declaring the synod was illegal on the ground that it was an attempt to override a decision by parliament. Milnes declined to take any further part in the proceedings and stalked out after he had finished his reading. Bishop Ingram, in his opening address, had stated that the clergy were not called to the meeting as law-breakers, but in the interests of peace. Mr. Milnes' view had no supporters.

Liverpool Is Emphatic.

Liverpool, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Clergymen of the Diocese of Liverpool today, like the London synod, voted against use of the revised prayerbook at the discretion of the bishop and also declined to give him the right to regulate reservation of the sacrament as provided for in the revised book. The local synod showed itself as stickler for church discipline when it decided, 244 to 22, to take part in any act of censure pronounced by the bishop when, in his judgment, occasion arose for disciplinary measures. This, it is understood, is especially applicable to parishes which may try to use the revised prayerbook.

Man, Thrown From Aero, Climbs Back

Another Falls to His Death
as Plane Overturns
in the Air.

Windsor, Ontario, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Arthur D. Streett, 19, of Windsor, a student flier, plunged 4,000 feet to his death, and R. H. Soundy, 34, his instructor, escaped a similar fate by clinging to a strut on their biplane, when the plane was thrown from its seats while flying over Essex County near Malden, Ontario, today.

The accident occurred when the flier lost control of the plane and it turned over. Neither was trapped in his seat. Unmanned, the plane ran wild in the air for a few moments, but Soundy managed to climb back into the cockpit, right the craft after it had fallen to within 800 feet of the ground and bring it to earth safely.

Streett was thrown clear of the plane. His body, which struck a tree as it fell, was found an hour and a half after the accident by Charles D. Streett, his father, and a brother, Norman.

Soundy was unable to explain why the plane turned over in mid-air. He said Streett was at the controls and that they had been flying about a half an hour. Soundy served in the Canadian Royal Air Corps in France during the war.

4 Royal Dead in Windsor Vault Removed at Night

Taken by King's Order to New Burial Place Near Victoria's Mausoleum—Castle Tombs Too Crowded
Is Reason for Shifting the Coffins.

London, Oct. 24 (N.Y.W.S.).—Four royal bodies were removed secretly last night, by order of King George, from the royal tombs at Windsor Castle to a vault constructed to receive them at Frogmore, near Queen Victoria's mausoleum.

A London evening newspaper discovered today that the great vault under famous St. George's Chapel, where hang the banners of the Knights of the Garter, had been opened last night, while the chapel was guarded by police brought down from London, and while the town of Windsor buzzed with gossip about officials at the castle removing information.

But tonight, after inspecting "mystery stories" in the newspapers, the palace press agents issued a statement saying that the bodies were not removed, "through any idea of secrecy or mystery," adding that "as a mark of reverence the operations were conducted at night with the quietness and decorum, which the occasion demanded."

What long-buried royalties had their last sleep disturbed, the authorities at Windsor Palace here and the Windsor Castle guardians decline to state beyond declaring that no dead members of the present royal house were involved. The reason given for the step taken is that the royal burial vaults are overcrowded, leaving no room for royalties who die in the future.

Among the buried monarchs who rest or who rested until last night at Windsor, are Henry VIII, Charles I, Edward IV, Henry VI, and Jane Seymour, wife of Henry VIII. In all, sixteen kings and queens of England—Lancasterian, Yorkist, Tudor, Stuart, and Hanoverian—have rested in the historic chapel at Windsor Castle.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

There comes to this desk at monthly intervals a fat envelope from the editorial sanctum of Mr. Quirk's fancy but far-fetched Photoplay Magazine. From its contents may be culled many items of pat and pithy comment upon the unwinding celluloids—especially since a new department has been inaugurated, making its bow in the November issue under the inspired heading of "Reeling Around With Leonard Hall," of whom you may have heard.

My proof: Greta Garbo speaks barytone. Paris' prefect of police, one M. Chlappe, peruses the film of Quirk's fancy but far-fetched. Photoplay Magazine. From its contents may be culled many items of pat and pithy comment upon the unwinding celluloids—especially since a new department has been inaugurated, making its bow in the November issue under the inspired heading of "Reeling Around With Leonard Hall," of whom you may have heard.

And here's another one: Words are coined thick and fast in Hollywood. A director who wanted a couple to stop embracing very suddenly shouted while the camera was grinding, "Un-hug!"

It comes to my attention that Meyer Davis is to conduct the third classic-jazz concert at the Fox Theater on next Sabbath afternoon at 2, with Samuel Korman, violinist, as the solo artist. This, I should say, is a happy combination. And I like it, further, because it reminds me that Fred Starke is returning to his old post of associate conductor, with Leon Brustoff at the Fox, having performed the preparatory functions for which he was dispatched to the Fox house in Detroit. While Mr. Korman will retain an associate conductorship, he also will serve as concert master of the symphony at the local cathedral, with himself, Henri Sokolov and Sigmund Zuehl in the first string section, gives that organization a formidable trio of virtuosi.

Never has a more forceful tribute to the esteem in which honest criticism and comment on the movies is held by those actively engaged in the industry come to my notice than is afforded by the "Hold Up" number of Welford Weston's Film Spectator, which signalled the conversion of that valued publication from a semimonthly to a weekly journal.

The industry took something over 70 pages of paid advertising to wish well a man who has, for the time, impaled them all on the point of a sharp and vitriolic pen—not spitefully but because he dared to tell the truth.

It probably is a species of lese majeste, but I might as well admit that the truly remarkable short-reel supplementary, "Killing the Killer," depicting a fight to a finish between a hooded cobra and a mongoose, on the Palace screen this week, kept me in mind constantly of Gene Tunney—the mongoose's part of it, I mean. He was in and out, side-stroke and ducking, feinting and socking until the cobra's legs, so to speak, were gone. A great fight and a great picture, with a real kill at the end—easily a fourteen count!

It has been suggested that they hold it over next week and let the cobra win.

Coleman Goetz has a smart crack, on the same bill, during a bit of breezy colloquy, somewhat to wit: Do you think Hoover would make a good President? "Yes, I imagine he would." "How about Smith?" "Well, I don't know; remember, it took two of them to make a cough drop!"

Gravity Overcome, Says Young Savant

Englishman Claims He Can
Suspend Metal in Air
Through New Force.

London, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—R. H. Tate, young scientist, claims to have overcome the laws of gravity, according to dispatches tonight from West Hants. The "Kingdom of God" is a play of the English type of the English tracks will be seen and heard Dorothy Mackall, Ralph Forbes, Lowell Sherman and Anna Q. Nilsson. It should be distinctly understood that this is not a release of the picture shown over a decade ago, but a strictly modern, brand new version of the classic story. The bill will be augmented by the customary house features, both stage and screen.

Tate placed on the floor the metal, said to resemble aluminum, but of a composition heretofore unknown, and placed a similar piece of metal above it in the air. The top piece of metal was suspended in mid-air, the dispatches said. "I have circumvented the force of gravity," Tate said. "I have discovered the new force from known forces, by eliminating gravity from the metal. Among the metal's possibilities is the controlling of aircraft from the ground."

More Diamonds Found After Crash Given Up

Oil City, Pa., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Postmasters of several towns in this section today reported receiving a few more diamonds from persons who picked up part of the $100,000 consignment of gems carried by William G. Kipson, air mail pilot, killed when his plane crashed at Polk, near here, one night last week. Jewels valued at more than $50,000 have been recovered to date from the wreckage and from sight-seers who carried away the diamonds.

Warrants for a large number of persons reported to have picked up stones were prepared, but none was served today.

Pennsylvania Charters Insurgent Coal Miners

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—The Anthracite Min. Workers of Pennsylvania, the insurgent offspring of the United Mine Workers in the hard-coal fields, received a State charter today from Gov. Fisher.

The new union was chartered under a legislative act of 1925, which provides that all State-wide labor organizations shall be incorporated by the State.

COMING TO THE THEATERS

NATIONAL.

Horace Liveright's sensational mystery play, "Dracula," is to be the attraction at the National Theater for an engagement of one week, commencing Monday, October 29, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. This dramatization was made by John Balderson from Bram Stoker's famous novel of the same name. The book was read by two generations of story readers and thrilled each generation with the horror of the story, the mystery of its unfolding and the suspense of its climax.

"Gang-War" will be shown on the screen at B. F. Keith's Theater next week. This story stars Olive Berdon and Jack Pickford.

The stage presentation headlines "The Dancing Fools," Louis and Charles Mosconi, assisted by Dorothy Van Alst, Serge Doyle and the "Aida Kaufman Girls." Others on the bill are Lester Crawford and Helen Broderick, Eddie Parks and Gene Ford, and a company of fifteen in "The Sad Case of Mary Dugan."

POLIS.

Miss Ethel Barrymore opens her week's engagement at Pol's Theater next Monday, October 29, with matinees on Thursday and Saturday, in her first new play in several seasons, "The Kingdom of God," by the noted Spanish dramatist, J. Martinez, letter, adaptation by Helen and H. Granville Barker. "The Kingdom of God" is a play of modern Spain by the author of the "Cradle Song," known to local theatergoers. Miss Barrymore is making a very short tour, following which she returns to New York for the gala opening of the Ethel Barrymore Theater.

RIALTO.

One of the most famous of the old Drury Lane melodramas, "The Whip," has been remade by First National and will be offered as a sound picture at the Rialto Theater for the week beginning Saturday. "The Whip" is a play of the English type of the English tracks will be seen and heard Dorothy Mackall, Ralph Forbes, Lowell Sherman and Anna Q. Nilsson. It should be distinctly understood that this is not a release of the picture shown over a decade ago, but a strictly modern, brand new version of the classic story. The bill will be augmented by the customary house features, both stage and screen.

AUDITORIUM.

Josef Hofmann will appear in concert tonight at 8:15 o'clock in the Washington Auditorium, his only appearance here this season. He will open the series of eight evening events of the Washington Cooperative Artists' concert course for 1928-1929 under the management of Dr. Harold M. Dudley. Universally accepted as the greatest pianist now living, Hofmann is equally celebrated for his unrivaled technique and creative interpretations.

BENEFIT LECTURE.

Lowell Thomas will discuss two of the most picturesque and romantic personalities of the World War, Col. T. E. Lawrence, the "uncrowned king of the Arabs," and Gen. Edmund Allenby, "deliverer of Jerusalem," in the illustrated lecture he will deliver at 8:30 o'clock on the afternoon of November 9, at the National Theater for the benefit of local charities. Thomas is known as one of the most magnetic speakers on the modern lecture platform and the motion pictures to be shown in connection with the address are finely colored and thrilling in the scenes presented.

EARLE.

"Waterfront," First National's comedy of life around the docks, with Dorothy Mackall and Jack M. Hall costarring in the roles of prime importance, is announced as the attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning with a midnight premiere performance this Friday night. The story was written by Will Champl and Gertrude Orr, who obtained their material first hand while serving as newspaper reporters. In addition to its fun, the picture embodies many thrills. The program will be rounded out by a varied list of abbreviated features, both silent and with Vitaphone and the orchestra.

COLUMBIA.

For the week beginning Saturday, Columbia will present the last joint starring vehicle for the romantic talents of Vilma Banky and Ronald Colman, "Two Lovers," a sound picture that has been warmly acclaimed in all of the important centers where it has been shown. The story was adapted from Baroness Orczy's novel of "Leath-erface," and the story of the Prince of Orange and the oppression of the Flemish people is told with a dramatic and emotional side of the story. The picture is a masterpiece of the opposing forces. Short reels added.

FOX.

The first of the Warner Brothers sensational Vitaphone pictures to be shown at the Fox Theater is scheduled for premiere presentation on Friday, October 26, for the week beginning Saturday. It bears the title of "Women They Talk About," and enlists the services of a notable cast led by Irene Rich, Audrey Ferris, William Collier, Jr., Claude Gillingwater, Anders Randolph and Lloyd Bacon. The screen will also provide a generous measure of Fox Movietone subjects, and on the stage a number of famous artists will furnish still another type of diversion. On Sunday, at 2, the third classic-jazz concert.

STRAND.

"Social Mads," scheduled as the attraction next week at the Strand Theater, Chuck Wilson and Betty Abbott are the featured players. The company also includes, and favorites, as Joe Singer, Bud Abbott, Arthur Jordan, Naomi Wheeler, Helen Coyne and others.

GALLI-CURCI CONCERT.

The Wilson-Green concert season of 1928-29 will be opened at Poli's Theater next Tuesday afternoon, October 30, at 4:30 o'clock, when Mme. Anna-Lita Galli-Curci, coloratura soprano, will make her only concert appearance of the present season as the first attraction in the Wilson-Green series, which also includes appearances of Mme. Louise Homer and her daughter, Mme. Louise Homer Stires; Loris Niles and her ballet, the Radio Revelers, and the German Opera Company of Berlin in "Das Rheingold."

PALACE.

Bebe Daniels, supported by Neil Hamilton, Lilyan Tashman and a host of others, will be the pictured star at Lee's Palace Theater for the week beginning Saturday in her latest Paramount release, "Take Me Home." The story affords opportunity for a deft mingling of rural and urban types, since it centers in the experiences of a youth who is taken up by an understudy in a show. On the stage, Wesley Eddy and the Palace Syncopators will appear in Charles A. Nigemeyer's "Bars and Stripes" revue, with King and the Dennis Sisters, Roy Chaney and the Gould Girls. Customary added attractions.

METROPOLITAN.

After a month of the most popular sound picture to date, the Metropolitan Theater, beginning Saturday, will present another distinguished audible subject in "Lilac Time," starring Coleman Moore, supported by Gary Cooper and a brilliant cast. In this film version of Jane Cowl's stage play, aviation plays an important part. Many of the serial shots are amazingly realistic and all have been photographed with exceptional skill. The story accentuates the sentimental side of the great war and affords Miss Moore a splendid opportunity to demonstrate that she is not solely a comedienne.

COMMUNITY CENTER.

Dr. Richard Burton, distinguished American lecturer on literature and the drama, will open this season's Community Institute of ten bi-weekly events, at Central Community Center, Wednesday evening next week, October 31, at 8:15 o'clock. Dr. Burton has chosen "The Younger Generation Speaks" as his subject, and will discuss the literary work of the brilliant young writers of the present day.

Little Speeds Work at G. U. For Duke

Sends 3 Teams Against Freshmen Who Use Duke's Plays.

Bozek for Hudak Only Change in Line-Up for Saturday.

THE Georgetown University Football Team worked at top speed at the Hilltop yesterday in preparation for its game Saturday at Griffith Stadium with Duke University. Coach Little divided his squad into three teams and pitted these against three freshmen eleven, while the leftovers got in plenty of work by jogging around the field.

Coach Little expects the hardest kind of a game from Duke and so do the players, but the Hilltoppers expect to emerge from the game the winner and consequently all are going at practice with a snap and a determination which had been missing heretofore.

After clearing the campus yesterday of every one except students and those who were well known, the coaches set about drilling the respective teams on defense against Duke plays.

Duke plays a tricky brand of football. The team uses some pretty formations from which it throws a great number of passes, mixing them with quick kicks and a few line plays.

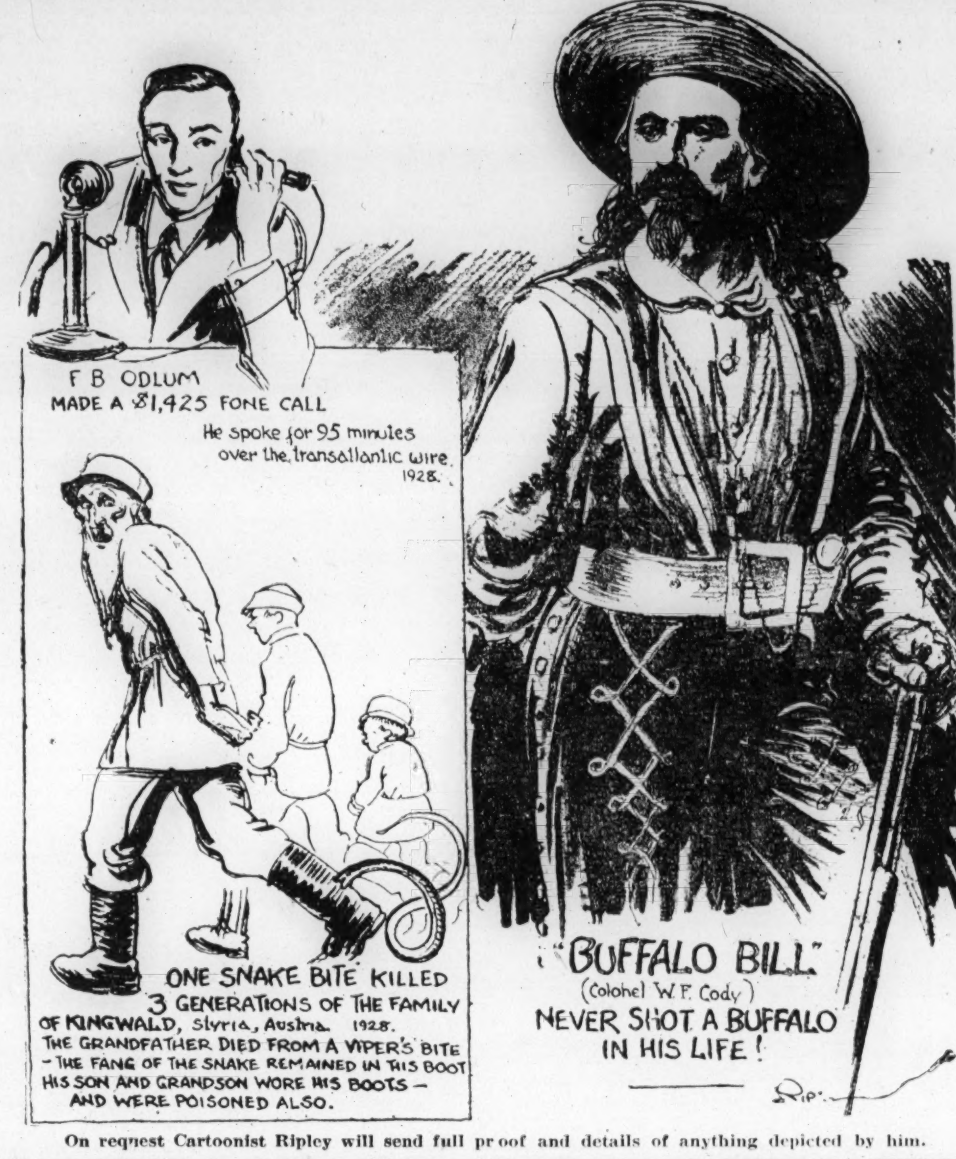

The Georgetown backs, as a protection against passes, can't come in too close to the line when on defense and consequently the Georgetown ends and center will be given the added task of stopping Duke's thrusts at the line.

Coach Little will stand pat for this game on what has been his regular line-up all season with the exception of Hudak's position, which Johnny Bozek will fill. Taking advantage of the injured condition of Bill Morris and Joseph Zimowski, his rivals, Harold Winkop stepped into the center position early in the season and seems to have almost a strangle hold on the job. There were many who believed that Bill Morris, former St. Joseph's star of Philadelphia, would be bending over the ball before the team faced Duke and New York University, but the manner in which Winkop hangs on, belies that fact.

While Georgetown students are getting considerably excited about the game with Duke Saturday, it is nothing in comparison to the interest attending over the Hilltoppers' clash with New York U. a week later. A special roster's train will leave Washington early next Friday afternoon for New York, returning early the following Monday morning.

Almost the Naked Truth

—By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Joe Miller, goalie for the New York Americans, has asked to be traded to some other club because the Madison Square Garden jockeys rode him unmercifully last winter when the team was in a protracted slump. At that time, and for the same reason, he begged to be sent to the Americans' farm at Niagara Falls, but the management, satisfied with his work, refused to do so.

Such an attitude as Miller's is unusual in sports, but not unique. Jacques Fourrier threatened to retire from baseball two years ago because the Brooklyn fans razed him so enthusiastically. When Gene Tunney brought back to his own home town the heavyweight championship of the world the reception he received when he was introduced from a New York ring contrasted so unfavorably with that the same crowd gave him when he had conquered that he made up his mind then that never again would he enter a ring except to fight a host of tennis and golf stars will pick up their things and refuse to play any more at the slightest manifestation of hostility from the gallery.

Most professional athletes, however, have rhinoceros hides, largely, perhaps, because they have to have them to weather the storms of abuse that rain down on them. Full many a boo and "ya big bum, ya" have slid off the unheeding ears of Babe Ruth as he fanned indignantly while suffering from a sty, a wrenched side, a lame leg, a sore arm, indigestion and a heavy cough.

Thousands of unappreciative fans right here in New York have sprained their thumbs turning down on the home-run king in his less striking moments. The time was when most fans seemed to regard Jack Dempsey as a reincarnation of Benedict Arnold, turned kidnaper, yet the master mauler lived to see the day when, deservedly or not, he attained to a degree of popularity never reached by any other fighter excepting John L. Sullivan.

Rube Marquard, in the days before "the $1,000 lemon" belatedly blossomed out as a polo ground, has heard plenty of remarks distinctly not calculated to enhance that panging young man's opinion of himself. Lefty Grove more recently had the same experience. These victims of hazing and amusement all men crave within themselves. Joe Miller should consult their biographies and a couple of psychoanalysts.

Some two months ago Johnny Keyes, who was elected Mayor of Chicago by one vote cast by the secretary of the Johnny Keyes Association, entered into negotiations with Eddie Mead for the contract of Joey Ross, New Jersey bantam. Mr. Keyes offered $1,200; Mr. Mead demanded $1,500. They argued and argued, as only Messrs. Keyes and Mead can argue. Along toward dawn Mr. Mead offered to cut the cards to see whether Mr. Keyes paid 1 cent or $2,500 for Ross. Mr. Keyes' treasury was ever so much higher than Mr. Mead's, and he got Ross for $2,500.

Ross will fight his first battle with the Keyes coat of arms on his trunks at the St. Nicholas arena next Monday night, with Kid Chocolate as his opponent. If the current rage of Harris is as good as he seemed to be in previous engagements, Mr. Keyes is likely to be calling Mr. Mead "robber" Tuesday morning.

Although Jack Dunn was a hard bargainer and set top prices on his ivory, baseball magnates liked to do business with him because he never misrepresented his wares. When he extracted $101,000 from Connie Mack for Chittys Grove it looked for awhile as if there were a larcenous element in the transaction. It was a matter of great satisfaction to Dunn that Grove proved this season that he is worth a lot more than he cost, as baseball values go. Almost all the men Dunn sent up to the majors stayed there to prove that the price tags the Baltimore dealer put on them were about right. Conspicuous and sad exceptions were Jack Bentley and Lefty Russell.

Big Ten Foes In Important Struggles

Minnesota - Iowa Tilt to Bring Together Star Full Backs.

65,000 to See Illini Play Northwestern at Urbana.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—All "big ten" football eleven will be engaged in Conference struggles almost as frequently as the Saturday game, more than one Eastern football coach is following the gloomy example set by Gil Bobie, of Cornell.

The Navy and Princeton were the worst sufferers today when the hard scrimmage sessions ended. With monthly examinations hampering the players by keeping many of them off the field, a blow was descended on the Navy camp when Oscar Hagberg, a newly discovered end prospect, received a broken leg during today's scrimmage session. The injury will prevent his becoming a first-string player this year, if he is able to play at all before the end of the season.

Hardin, Navy center, also went on the unavailable list with injuries. A pounding received in the Notre Dame game aggravated old injuries. Hagberg, who was a back field star, who off the field, a blow was descended on the Navy camp when Oscar Hagberg, a newly discovered end prospect, received a broken leg during today's scrimmage session. The injury will prevent his becoming a first-string player this year, if he is able to play at all before the end of the season.

Likewise, Nagurski has led the Gophers to victories this season. He stepped into the shoes of Red Hiesting in such a manner that many predict Nagurski will exceed the former's fame in the hearts of Gopher alumni.

Neither team has had its 1928 Conference record marred. Both have defeated powerful teams that, on paper and performance, stacked up with other undefeated eleven, including Illinois, champions of 1927.

Illinois' veterans, who downed Pat Page's Hoosiers last Saturday, will play Northwestern on the former's home ground at Northwestern University, at Urbana, next Saturday, but a large crowd is expected to see the game.

Michigan, twice defeated this season by Conference opponents and once in a nonconference game, will take on the strong Wisconsin Badgers at Ann Arbor. The Badgers, who consider themselves still in the running for the title, despite a 19-19 tie with the Purdue Boilermakers, should hold the edge.

The Boilermakers are rated a little better than the Chicago Maroons in the opinion of the writers, who have seen the game. Purdue's ability in holding Wisconsin to an even basis would be a first-string catch for the Boilermakers. If the game comparisons come, it will be a first-string catch for the Boilermakers.

Ohio State, undefeated this year, will meet Indiana at Columbus. The Hoosiers, who have a good indication as to the real strength of the Buckeyes, Indiana lost last Saturday by one touchdown, and Ohio can repeat the Illinois performance, claims to the title should be considered seriously.

Rockne, in Elimination, Selects New Full Back

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Knute K. Rockne's search for a full back is ended—at least temporarily.

From a tryout of 15 men the Notre Dame coach has selected as the most likely candidate to give the Notre Dame Eleven a scoring punch. Mortenson weighs 175 pounds.

Steve O'Neill Signed To Manage Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Steve O'Neill, former Toronto catcher, will manage the Toronto club, which was announced today by Vice President Dunn, of the Toronto International League Baseball Club. O'Neill will also be a first-string catcher on the local team. He has been with the St. Louis American League team for the past two years.

Women Form Doubles League With 10 Teams

A women's doubles league, similar to the men's doubles bowling league formed some time ago, was organized today at the Arcadia alleys, with ten teams. About ten more teams are expected in the new league, which will open on November 3.

Potomac Boat Club Five In First Drill Tonight

Potomac Boat Club's basketball team will hold its first practice tonight in the Central High School gymnasium. All players wishing to try for positions on the team are requested to report at 9 p. m.

Bucky Harris Sees Higher Place for Tigers in 1929

BUCKY HARRIS, erstwhile manager of the Nats, is placidly awaiting the start of the spring training season when he will undertake the direction of his new charges, the Detroit Tigers, for whom he predicts a high if not exalted place in the American League next season.

Hard Practice Is Costly in East

Hagberg, Navy, Breaks Leg; Levine, Tiger Guard, Hurt.

Army Coaches Fail to Risk Convalescents in Scrimmage.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (A.P.).—With the midweek practice battles for varsity plays producing injuries almost as frequently as the Saturday game, more than one Eastern football coach is following the gloomy example set by Gil Bobie, of Cornell.

The Navy and Princeton were the worst sufferers today when the hard scrimmage sessions ended. With monthly examinations hampering the players by keeping many of them off the field, a blow was descended on the Navy camp when Oscar Hagberg, a newly discovered end prospect, received a broken leg during today's scrimmage session. The injury will prevent his becoming a first-string player this year, if he is able to play at all before the end of the season.

Hardin, Navy center, also went on the unavailable list with injuries. A pounding received in the Notre Dame game aggravated old injuries. Hagberg, who was a back field star, who off the field, a blow was descended on the Navy camp when Oscar Hagberg, a newly discovered end prospect, received a broken leg during today's scrimmage session. The injury will prevent his becoming a first-string player this year, if he is able to play at all before the end of the season.

At Cornell, Bobie has an undamaged team to send against Princeton. An open date Saturday with the resulting opportunity to rest his men, along with a broken leg, during today's scrimmage session, and the second team promptly crossed the Scrub goal line.

The Army squad, with five men left on the hospital list from the Harvard game, has its first hard session in preparation for Yale, but the players were halted before they became too fatigued in order not to risk further injuries.

Only one case of serious damage was reported in western Pennsylvania. When Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech completed their home preparations for their meeting Saturday and prepared to vanish into the hinterlands outside the city for final scrums, it was announced that Parkinson, star full back, still was disabled and probably would not get into the fray. Parkinson, who has been a star since he came safely through a scrimmage against a mythical Syracuse team.

Maryland Back Field Fit for V. M. I. Game

Coach Curly Byrd, of the Maryland Eleven, continued to proceed slowly with his charges yesterday in preparation for the game with V. M. I. in Richmond Saturday. Several men on the squad are not in the best of condition after the hard games which the Old Line Eleven played in the past week.

However, Snitz Snyder, who has been suffering with charleyhorse, is much improved and Augie Roberts, who has a bit stale, apparently has recovered his true form. Both will start in the back field.

The Old Line Eleven, who have been limited mainly to signal drills and fundamentals thus far this week, will have their only scrimmage today when the academy, fortified with V. M. I. plays and formations, will tackle the varsity to give it a taste of the Cadets' attack.

Mardfeldt Eligibles To Be Known Tonight

The line-up of the Mardfeldt Athletic Club for its game with the Carlises in the 135-pound class of the Capital City League next Sunday will be determined tonight at a practice scrimmage.

South Carolina Plays Clemson Eleven Today

Special To The Washington Post. Columbia, S. C., Oct. 24.—The stage is all set for South Carolina's great football classic. Tomorrow at noon at the State Fair Grounds, the Palmetto State's two undefeated Southern Conference teams—the University of South Carolina Gamecocks and the Clemson Tigers—will meet in their annual battle.

The game will be played before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game in South Carolina. It promises to be one of the great games in the history of the athletic relations between the two institutions.

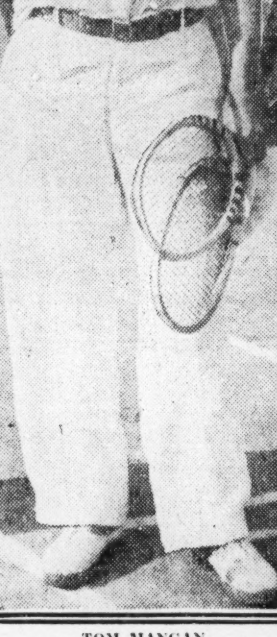

Both teams enter the contest with wonderful records for the season. Clemson's goal line has not been crossed this season. Newberry College, Auburn, North Carolina State, Davidson and Erskine have all made assaults upon it, but not one of them has succeeded in scoring against the Tigers. While South Carolina has been scored upon by two teams the Gamecocks have always come out on the heavy end of the scoring business and have turned back some powerful opponents.

Apaches and Northerns Name Officials Tonight

The Apache-Northern game scheduled for Sunday took on the aspects of a championship contest last night, when Managers Seymour Hall and Sam Ornes failed to agree on officials for the battle. After a discussion, the matter was boiled down to a group of four, which included Seymour, Ornes, O'Meara, Dan Ahearn and Kiz, former Iowa State player. The final selection will probably be made tonight.

Homestead Gridmen Add Stars for Hawks

The champion Homestead Team that opposes the Mohawks at the Griffith Stadium Sunday are coming to Washington with the intent of settling the dispute that started here one year ago, when the teams played a 7-to-7 tie, which was decided by a coin toss. With the addition of Cauli and Leisenberger in the line and Newton and Enright in the back field, the Baltimoreans are sure of victory over the Indians.

Leisenberger will play at tackle for the champions, while Cauli will be stationed at left end. Leisenberger was one of the outstanding players at Johns Hopkins University last year and also made quite a name for himself with their lacrosse team that competed in the Olympic games. Cauli is an ex-Penn State man, while Newton hails from West Point.
